Union to Vote on New Deal, Says Firm

B.C. Tel Yields, Hikes Pay Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A breakthrough in negotiations between the B.C. Telephone Co. and representatives of 6,600 striking employees came late Tuesday night when the company increased its previous wage stand of a 17 per cent increase over two years to 19.8 per cent.

In a statement issued after the talks, begun Friday with the aid of federal conciliation officer Don Tysoe, the company said it had offered "an across-the-board wage increase of 19.8 per cent, a reduced work week for plant employees which would raise their hourly rates by 27.9 per cent, and a variety of additional improvements."

The statement said negotiators of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. would submit the proposals to their membership for voting. Union officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

"We believe the employees will give most serious consideration to the company's offer and we hope they will accept them so this strike can be ended," the company statement said.

B.C. Tel had previously remained adamant on the 17 per cent increase, contained in a conciliation board report which the federation rejected. The federation demanded a 32 per cent increase and struck June 23.

About 1,500 supervisory employees have maintained long distance service and kept up with repairs but lagged in installing new telephones. Numerous incidents of vandalism to telephone cables have also marked the five-week strike.

Third picture sent shows Mars' south-polar cap

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) —Mariner 6 sent 32-3 pictures across 58,000,000 miles of space Tuesday night—some with new information—as it hurtled toward a close flyby of the mysterious red planet Mars.

Most were fuzzy and indistinct but scientists said the later photos in the series showed these hitherto unknown features: the south polar ice cap has ragged edges, and it has a strange dark patch in its centre.

The early pictures were likened by one observer to burry views of a dirty marshmallow.

QUALITY IMPROVES

But quality improved and the ragged edge showed up on frame 20. A spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory commented later: "Perhaps the most exciting result is that some pictures show a ragged edge of the southern polar cap, possibly caused by the presence of mountains or craters. This is new information."

The cap's dark spot showed on Frame 30. The spokesman said this had not been seen before, and no information was available on its nature. Another feature of final shots was that

Nixons Away to Vietnam In Secrecy-Clouded Trip

BANGKOK (AP) — President Nixon took off early today from Thailand for a secrecy-cloaked one-day trip to Vietnam. Although the travelling White House refused to announce his destination, it was known to be somewhere in the Saigon area. Mrs. Nixon accompanied her husband on the flight.

Reliable sources indicated Nixon would visit one base around Saigon during his stay and make a speech to American troops.

The sources reported that Nixon would lunch with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at the Independence Palace in downtown Saigon as a dramatic show of confidence in the security of the capital.

The president and Mrs. Nixon took a helicopter from the grand palace in Bangkok to the airport, 15 miles from town.

* * *

He was accompanied by the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams, and by the U.S. Ambassador to Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker and Mrs. Bunker, who is Ambassador Carol Laise, the U.S. envoy to Nepal.

Nixon will return to Bangkok tonight to wind up his three-day stay in Thailand.

* * *

Shortly after Nixon left Bangkok, a communications blackout was imposed in Saigon on out-going news dispatches. It was believed that the blackout would continue until the president was on his way back to Thailand.

The suddenness and the security-dictated secrecy of Nixon's Vietnam travel arrangements were reminiscent of former president Lyndon Johnson's two brief visits while he was on Asian trips.

Johnson flew into Cam Ranh Bay, a big, relatively secure U.S. base some 180 miles northeast of Saigon in

Czechs Hurl Rocks At Soviet Visitors

PRAGUE (AP)—Angry workers stoned a Soviet Communist party delegation arriving to visit a factory outside of Prague Tuesday, Czechoslovak informants said.

The Moscow Municipal Communist party delegation headed by Victor V. Grishine, deputy member of the Soviet party Politburo, left without entering the Avia light plane and airplane parts plant north of the capital, the sources said. No injuries were reported. There was no official confirmation of the incident.

Czechoslovak eyewitnesses said several hundred workers were outside the Avia factory as the Russians arrived. The visitors assumed it was to welcome them but they quickly returned to their cars when the welcome turned out to be jeers and rocks, the sources said.

From Avia, the Soviet delegation went to the sprawling CKD industrial works in the northwest of Prague, where workers have withheld union dues and held stop-work meetings to protest pro-Soviet policies of Communist party leader Gustav Husak.

At the CKD Locomotive Works, sources said, virtually all the Czechoslovak workers managed to be away from their machines and the Russians passed through an almost deserted factory.

Own Brassiere Fetters Disguised Hijack Man

MANAGUA (Reuters) — A would-be hijacker disguised as a woman was overpowered Tuesday by the pilot of a Nicaraguan airliner and tied up with his own brassiere and strips from his miniskirt.

The 26-year-old Nicaraguan was also wearing an elastic girdle.

The C-46 NICA airliner, on a flight to the city of Bluefields on the Atlantic coast with 42 persons aboard, returned here and the man was handed over to police.

He was identified as Carlos Jose Guadamuz, a member of the clandestine Sandinista National Liberation Army who had been believed to be in Czechoslovakia.

Guadamuz, wearing a wig and dressed in a yellow miniskirt, boarded the plane under the name of Maria Terese Lainez.

Movie takes world to eerie lunar landing

HOUSTON (AP) — It opens like a science-fiction thriller, silent and eerie and shadowy, without sound effects but loaded with high drama.

A tiny spaceship. Two astronauts, alone but not visible. A foreign, mysterious, cratered planet glowing out a window.

* * *

This is the prelude to man's first moon landing, the filmed approach to the lunar surface July 20 of Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

Through vivid color photography, the Apollo explorers took American television viewers aboard their spaceship Eagle and ferried them Tuesday to a perilous landing on the lunar surface.

* * *

This was the first movie footage of the Apollo 11 adventure released by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration after elaborate, complex and delicate decontamination and processing procedures.

The film was accompanied by four color photographs showing footprints, a silhouette of the spidery moonship and a tan, beachlike lunar surface with the American flag unfurled above it.

But the 16-millimetre movie film was the highlight.

The space drama opened as Armstrong and Aldrin guided Eagle along the southwestern edge of the landing zone in the Sea of Tranquillity.

As the spaceship descended to its historic rendezvous, viewers could see the olive-colored, cratered lunar surface shining through Aldrin's right-hand window.

They could watch as the

El Salvador Pulling Out Of Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador backed down under pressure from the Organization of American States Tuesday and announced its intention to withdraw its troops from Honduran soil occupied in a recent armed conflict.

El Salvador yielded after the OAS had agreed to apply stiff economic sanctions unless the Salvadorean government removed the troops.

Mariner Sends First Mars Snaps

the north polar cap, barely discernable in early photos, stood out brightly.

The 33rd and final frame was only two-thirds completed due to premature shut-off of the camera.

A spokesman at the laboratory, where pictures were shown on a television monitor screen, said that despite the poor quality of most shots they could be substantially enhanced. This is done by running the signal through a computer and printing them photographically.

CLOSE THURSDAY

The pictures were taken as Mariner 6 closed in on Mars for a close passage Thursday.

A simulation, shown on another monitor at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, based on photos taken by Earth telescopes, showed more detail — numerous dark markings which some scientists believe could be vegetation.

Scientists had said the first Mariner 6 photos would be about the same quality as from telescopes.

SPLOTCHES

Mariner's photo No. 1 had only a few vague splotches which didn't seem to correspond with known features.

The image was slightly egg-shaped and first word was that this was due to some kind of distortion. Later a spokesman said this was because part of the Eastern Hemisphere was in night shadow.

The second picture was little different.

The tiny space voyager, travelling 16,000 miles an hour, began its reconnaissance mission with a series of 33 photos taken over 20 hours from distances between 771,000 and 450,000 miles.

STORED, RELAYED

They were stored, then relayed Earthward — 10,000 miles and 37 minutes apart — over a three-hour period starting at 6:35 p.m. PDT, just 25 minutes after the last shot in the sequence was snapped. Because of the distance, it took five minutes for the signals to reach Earth. Mariner 6 was to pass about 2,000 miles from Mars Thursday.

A laboratory spokesman said: "The contrast is lower than we would like, but we expect that electronic processing later will bring out details we can't see now."

Experts had expected to see a bull-like image in the photo's centre, part of a broad band of dark regions that girdle the 4,000-mile-diameter planet. These regions, which darken in spring — the season now on Mars — and lighten in summer are those which some believe to be vegetations. Others say soil could be changing with the seasons.

There was applause from spectators at the laboratory as the pictures came on a monitor screen. The laboratory operates the Mariner program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The pictures from the unmanned planetary explorer came to Earth just nine days after a manned spacecraft, Apollo 11, relayed dramatic television shots of the first men on the moon.

Mariner 6's photos, like Apollo's were televised.

The pictures built up on the monitor screen a line at a time, with 704 lines needed to complete an image, a process taking about five minutes. After a few seconds on the screen, the completed pictures flashed off and a new one began.

MAJOR FEATURE

In the third picture, a spokesman detected what he called a major feature of Mars, a dark area called Mare Sirenum. He said a dark spot in the north polar region appeared to be rotating, and could be a cloud.

The fourth picture had a small bright spot identified as a feature of the Martian landscape known as Narsus, apparently a high spot.

The 850-pound spacecraft will have flown 241,000,000 miles in 156 days after launch from Cape Kennedy when it skims within 2,130 miles of Mars early Thursday.

BEST YET

It is scheduled then to return the best photos yet of Mars' surface and obtain other data that scientists hope will indicate whether the planet could support life.

Five days behind Mariner 6 is Mariner 7, similarly equipped for the same mission. Mariner 6 will concentrate on the equatorial area. Mariner 7 will cover some of the same ground and also include the south polar region.

Each carries a narrow-angle camera for detailed pictures during close approach, and a wide-angle camera for both distant and close shots. The latter is capable of identifying objects as small as 900 feet across.

Mariner 7 will pass within 2,000 miles next Monday, only 140 miles from its aiming point.

Mariner 6's pictures were expected to be 100 times more detailed than those of Mariner 4, which obtained the previous best shots. Mariner 4, with a camera that could distinguish objects two miles wide, flew within 6,800 miles of Mars in 1965 and returned 22 pictures showing a barren, crater-pocked surface that looked as desolate as that on the moon. Scientists said after examining them it seemed unlikely Mars could support anything other than microbial or vegetable life.

Mars, one of the sky's most intriguing bodies, for centuries has been the object of speculation about whether it could harbor intelligent life. The most Earthlike of planets, it is known to have a thin atmosphere, polar ice caps, occasional clouds, seasonal changing of colors, and lines some have have likened to canals.

Moon Movie

astronauts dodged a rock-filled crater 90 feet across, react as the shadow of the Eagle touched the surface and sigh as the vehicle silently settled down amid billowing moon dust kicked up by the rocket engine.

And the viewer was there as Armstrong emerged, descended cautiously down the ladder and took his "one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind."

The camera, mounted inside the spaceship, followed Armstrong's slow, deliberate manoeuvres across the powdery surface, his white spacesuit moving within the shadow of the Eagle.

★ ★ ★

Lights from the instrument panel reflected on the window, adding to the over-all eeriness of the scene.

And then the camera was trained on the American flag, its red, white and blue unfurled against a backdrop of the lunar surface, dark where man had stepped, lighter where he had not.

The flag, atop a shaft jammed into the surface, was extended by a flimsy wire, producing a fluttering effect in an airless world.

★ ★ ★

And then it ended. The 150-foot film had run its course. And the voice of a NASA geologist brought a return to reality. "The moon is much greyer than it appears. I do not consider the olive color to be realistic."

Nixons

October, 1966, and again in December, 1967.

Nixon, however, was described as wanting to follow a different pattern from his predecessor, partly to avoid being identified with Johnson's war policies.

The informants said Nixon planned a more extensive Vietnam visit than Johnson and also arranged to take along his wife.

The Bangkok visit was midway in Nixon's journey that began with the Philippines and Indonesia and continues Thursday. He goes on to India, Pakistan, Romania and England.

His Thai visit is probably the most important of his stops in laying the groundwork for U.S. policy in this area after the Vietnam war, both because of Thailand's cornerstone position in Southeast Asian security and because of his meetings with senior U.S. officials here.

Series Lead To Carlings

Helen Griffin, who had four hits, sparked a three-run rally in the sixth inning which gave Carlings a 9-7 victory Tuesday over Casey's Juniors in the opening game of their best-of-three semi-final in the Victoria Women's Softball League.

Wendy Moser had a home run for the losers.

Second game is Thursday at Bullen Park at 6:30 p.m.

Mackasey Going Fishing To Avert Dock Strike?

VANCOUVER (CP)— Federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey was to arrive in Vancouver Tuesday night for what was thought to be some last-minute persuasion aimed at averting a British Columbia dockworkers' strike.

His visit was officially called a fishing trip but a work stoppage could begin after Thursday if negotiations for a new contract produce nothing.

TALKS ADJOURN

The B.C Maritime Employers' Association, meanwhile, has agreed to an adjournment of talks requested by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union until 10 a.m. PDT Thursday.

Indications that Mackasey will attempt some persuasion in the dispute were strengthened by current competition in world wheat markets and a grave cash situation on the Prairies, which would be further heightened by a tie-up in B.C. ports.

A conciliation board failed to settle the dispute between employers and 3,300 longshoremen with a recommendation of 70 cents hourly over two years on a base rate of $3.88.

STORES TO OPEN

The longshoremen are asking a flat $51 per shift and a guaranteed 40-hour week in return for working around the clock seven days a week.

In the supermarket dispute, about a dozen stores of the Safeway chain were to open today joining 13 stores of Shop-Easy, High Low and Food Fair which opened last week after a settlement with grocery clerks.

Super Valu stores remain closed because locked out meatcutters, who rejected a settlement similar to that given clerks, continue to picket the one chain.

NIGHT MEETING

Representatives of the 800 meatcutters met Tuesday night to plot their next move in the two-month dispute. Earlier, they were turned down by the supermarkets in a request for an improvement to their settlement offer.

The meatcutters' main demand is a work week shortened to 36 hours and four days, from the current 40-hours, in addition to a $1 hourly increase over one year.

Clerks received a 60 - cent hourly increase over two years on rates ranging between $2.45 and $3.45.

Talks continued between representatives of the British Columbia Telephone Co. and the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers after a 14-hour marathon session Tuesday.

There were no reported developments as 6,000 telephone workers remained off the job throughout the province seeking a 32 per cent wage increase over two years.

The company is sticking by a conciliation board recommendation for 17 per cent and talks are being conducted with federal conciliation officer Don Tysoe.

In another labor development, three affiliated unions in the hotel beverage business have broken with the B.C. Federation of Labor in a dispute over drinking reforms in the province.

STAND HURTS

The Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union, Local 20, the Beverage Dispensers Union, Local 676, and the Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union, Local 835, said Monday a federation stand on liquor reforms could put them out of business.

The federation endorsed a stand by NDP leader Tom Berger calling for neighborhood pubs and the sale of beer in grocery stores.

The three unions have informed the parent Canadian Labor Congress of their action.

Instead of Arbitration

Servants Weigh Strike Option

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal employees across Canada, most of whom chose compulsory arbitration as their method of settling contract disputes, are being asked to consider the conciliation-strike option.

The 120,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, in a newsletter made public Tuesday, announced that its members are being asked whether they are satisfied with the method they have previously selected for dispute settlement.

★ ★ ★

The alliance is including a ballot in its July-August regular publication "by means of which members may indicate if they feel a new secret vote should be conducted in their occupational group." Ballots must be returned by Aug. 15.

The union's move follows recent friction between the alliance and government negotiations during the almost-constant bargaining that goes on here.

Alliance President Claude Edwards has charged the government with refusing to bargain in good faith and says delays in implementing new contracts.

Tale-Telling Tricky Decision

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to speak with a doctor treating a member of my family. I do not expect him to discuss his patient, but I know some facts that might help him. I would not want my visit known.

Do I make an appointment? I do not want to take up time, but do not feel that a phone call would be fair either. I do not want to interfere, but know that previous problems have been withheld from the doctor with the excuse that they were unimportant—Mrs. J.C.

This is a rather tricky situation, and I'll give you what guidelines I can. In the last analysis, however, you'll have to make certain decisions for yourself, taking into consideration the exact factors involved.

What do you have to tell the doctor? How close a relative is involved? Do you know the physician, or is he a stranger?

It is true that patients often conceal things from their doctors — heaven knows why. They deny or refuse to mention symptoms. They conceal certain activities or facts about themselves, believing them to be irrevelant to the complaint.

Heavy drinking is a common example. How many patients have told a physician, "Oh, I have a cocktail before dinner," knowing perfectly well that four or five is par for the course? Chronic gambling, and losing, may be tearing a man's nerves apart — and his health — but he won't admit it, and the doctor has to grope around in the dark for a clue to his patient's tensions.

A wife may be too proud to admit that she has a philandering husband or is pushed beyond endurance by family fights.

And as for diets — what a patient eats and how much! Well, some of the time you get the truth, and sometimes you don't.

Too often a doctor's hands are tied because he can't get the facts to work with. Who suffers? The doctor may be baffled and frustrated, but it is the patient's health that may be sacrificed.

OBJECTIVE THOUGHT

Should you talk to your relative's doctor? Weigh objectively what you intend to say to him, and be as sure as possible that your information will truly help your relative.

A phone call may take considerable time and throw the doctor's schedule into a snarl. (It's the patients in the waiting room who suffer.)

Rather, it might be better to write a note to the doctor, explaining briefly what you have in mind. He can then give you some guidance as to whether to proceed and how.

TIME FOR SALE

If you are determined to go see him without some prior approach, remember that all a physician has to sell is his time and his skill. Doctors are busy, and they have to make use of their time. The doctor in this instance may or may not charge a fee for such a visit, but it is time that he will be spending in behalf of his patient, so be prepared to pay a fee if you make an office visit.

All things considered, a note to him is the best approach.

Support for Thieu Nixon Message On Vietnam Trip

PARIS (UPI) — Western diplomatic sources said Tuesday President Nixon's trip to Vietnam was designed as a clear warning to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong that the United States maintains full support for the South Vietnamese government.

The sources said Nixon's mission was expected to strengthen President Nguyen Van Thieu's hand against outside and domestic adversaries.

WEDGE ATTEMPTED

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong negotiators at the deadlocked Paris talks have been trying for weeks to drive a wedge between the United States and South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's official newspaper Tuesday accused Nixon of seeking a new Asian policy in which the U.S. would dominate the Orient.

Commenting on Nixon's Southeast Asia tour, Nhan Dan, Hanoi's official voice, said Nixon was trying to convince the peoples of the area that the new policy would "be based on mutual trust, mutual respect, mutual confidence and mutual co-operation."

RED OBJECTIVE

"However, all these allegations cannot conceal the real objective of Nixon which is to use new tricks to continue the U.S. aggressive and warlike policy in Asia and materialize its unchanged scheme to dominate Asia politically, economically and militarily."

Excerpts from the article, North Vietnam's first comment on the Nixon tour, were broadcast by the Vietnam news agency and heard in Tokyo.

Lull Still On

Copters Drop GIs To Hold Border

SAIGON (AP) — United States infantrymen swept in by helicopter Tuesday to reinforce South Vietnamese government irregulars screening the Cambodian border, and the joint force killed 35 North Vietnamese troops in an eight-hour fight, the U.S. military command reported.

A spokesman said American and South Vietnamese casualties were light.

The action, along the banks of the rain-swollen Bobo Canal 26 miles west of Saigon, was only 12 miles southeast of the area called the Citadel where American troops killed 53 Viet Cong guerrillas in a battle that ended 12 hours earlier.

The two fights were among the heaviest since the lull in ground action in South Vietnam began nearly six weeks ago. Both were along traditional Communist infiltration routes toward Saigon, but American military sources said there was no indication that the other side was preparing a major move against the capital.

Nearly a dozen other ground encounters were reported throughout South Vietnam on Monday. They were said to have left a total of nearly 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

U.S. military analysts said the battles were not considered significant enough, however, to represent a break in the summer lull.

UN Force 'Enemy' Of Arab Guerrillas

From UPI

The leading Arab guerrilla organization Al Fatah Tuesday said UN truce observers stand in the way of the liberation of Palestine and occupied Arab territory from Israel and warned they will be treated as enemies.

Al Fatah said the UN truce observers stand in the way of Arab conquest of Palestine and other Israeli-occupied territory.

"Anyone who bars the way to liberation is our enemy and will be declared as such," the broadcast said.

It said the UN truce observers were stationed in the middle East to protect Israel and to "carry out the proposed political settlement" already rejected by the Arabs.

Al Fatah was commenting on reports that Secretary General Thant was considering withdrawing UN truce teams from the Middle East because of the death of Swedish Major Bo Roland Plane during an Egyptian-Israeli gun duel across the Suez Canal last Sunday. Egypt said Plane was killed when Israeli shell hit his observation post.

In New York, however, all seven countries contributing personnel to the UN mideast force agreed that observers must remain on the ceasefire lines. The agreement was reached at an informal meeting of representatives of Argentina, Austria, Chile, Finland, France, Ireland and Sweden.

But Truce Rejected

Biafra Picture Grows Brighter

KAMPALA (Reuters) — Prospects for a new peace initiative in the Nigerian civil war gained momentum Tuesday when a Roman Catholic conference of bishops decided to consider the question of peace in Africa as one of the major topics at their four-day meeting in this capital of Uganda.

Speculation mounted that Pope Paul, scheduled to arrive here Thursday to close the conference and consecrate a shrine to 22 Ugandan martyrs, might attempt to bring federal Nigeria and the secessionist state of Biafra to the conference table here. Ugandan President Milton Obote was mentioned in the role of mediator if this happened.

MAJOR TOPIC

Although the all-African bishops conference was originally scheduled to discuss only church matters, it now appeared that the Nigerian war will be among the major points under discussion. Bishops from both federal Nigeria and Biafra are attending the meeting.

The speculation of a peace move was strengthened Tuesday when it was learned that a federal Nigerian delegation of six officials was due here. Biafra is sending a three-man delegation.

TRUCE REJECTED

The Nigerian federal government Tuesday rejected a proposal Monday by Biafran leaders Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu for a temporary truce in the civil war during the Pope's visit to Uganda.

The Pope was understood to be anxious to pave the way for peace between federal Nigeria and Biafra while on the first visit to Africa by a reigning Roman Catholic pontiff.

But observers said the Pope's 52-hour schedule here is crowded and opportunities for possible peace talks will be limited.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED

More than 500,000 pilgrims are expected to arrive by Thursday. Several thousand persons were already camped on the outskirts of the city near the Namugongo shrine which commemorates the memories of the martyrs who died on Ascension Day, 1886, at the orders of Kabaka (King) Mwanga of the Buganda tribe.

At the bishops conference, the seven cardinals and 33 archbishops and bishops attending said the question of peace throughout Africa should be considered including trouble spots such as Rhodesia and the Sudan.

Test Mice Set For Moon Dust

HOUSTON (AP) — White mice born by Caesarean section will become today the first earth creatures with moon dust in their veins.

Bred for generations for this fate, the rodents will be injected with pulverized lunar material by scientists hunting for possible moon germs hazardous to humans.

MIXED IN FOOD

Soil from a core-sample collector jammed five inches into the moon by astronaut Edwin Aldrin has been prepared for the injections and to mix with the mice's food and air.

If the mice get sick, it could mean the Apollo 11 astronauts' quarantine period would be extended beyond Aug. 11. Either way, many of the mice won't live out the week—they'll be killed so scientists can examine their organs.

The mice are germ-free, descendants of generations kept in a sterile environment, with each baby mouse being delivered prematurely by surgery to protect it from the mother's germs, then raised strictly on sterile food and water.

Because they are germ-free, they are highly susceptible to illness. Any contact with a bacteria-like organism would quickly produce noticeable effects.

BEHIND THREE WALLS

Their quarantine is more elaborate than that of the astronauts. Three barriers isolate the 354 mice. There is only one wall between the spacemen and the outside world.

Officials do not believe living organisms could survive on the moon, but said "we want to be certain—we cannot take a chance that one exists which could cause an epidemic on earth."

"The first type of testing we do with the mice is what we call our preliminary toxicity testing," said Dr. William Kemmerer, quarantine manager for the special space centre laboratory.

24-HOUR WATCH

"In this we will take a small group of mice and inoculate them and then hold them for 24 hours to look for any toxic effects. This would be our number-one confounding variable: Is the material for some chemical reason toxic, an event quite apart from an infectious disease?"

Moon dirt also will be mixed today with six different types of human and animal cells and later with algae, 28 types of plant life, Japanese quail, shrimp, oysters, guppies, roaches, flies and a variety of other life forms for 30 to 50 days.

PERIODIC TESTS

Every two days, for the next 20 days, some of the mice will be killed and their organs inspected in detail in autopsies. Other mice will be killed and dissected after having been exposed to moon dirt for periods of 35 and 50 days.

Elsewhere in the laboratory, examination of rock samples from the moon was interrupted to repair a cracked glove.

The glove, which permits scientists outside a vacuum box to handle objects inside, became cracked while rocks were being removed from the first of two boxes loaded by astronauts Aldrin and Neil Armstrong.

Officials decided to correct the problem by slipping another glove over the cracked one, but said time needed to make the repair would prevent opening the second rock box until today.

PURITY ENDANGERED

If the cracks had worked all the way through, earthly air could seep into the vacuum cabinet. This would make the rocks less scientifically pure and permit lunar organisms, if present, to leak out.

Scientists Tuesday opened a bag containing nine small rocks, weighing a total of nine pounds, collected by Armstrong near the base of the lunar landing craft.

The rocks were gathered shortly after he stepped onto the surface and placed in his pocket as a contingency in the event he had to return suddenly to the craft before the boxes could be loaded.

Dr. Albert King, curator of the laboratory, described the rocks as "hard and dense."

Work was also begun to see whether a sheet of aluminum foil, unfurled on the moon by the astronauts, successfully collected inert gases such as helium and neon streaming from the sun. The experiment could provide new information about radiation storms from the sun that could be potentially hazardous to astronauts.

UN Censures Portugal

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) —The Security Council Monday censured recent Portuguese armed attacks on a Zambian village near the Mozambique border and warned Lisbon further such incidents would require a stronger reaction by the world body.

Full UN Term

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) —U Thant plans to serve his full term as United Nations secretary-general which expires Dec. 31, 1971, a UN spokesman said.

No Seabed Arms Soviet Aim

GENEVA (UPI) — The Soviet Union called Tuesday for complete demilitarization of the ocean floor rather than banning only nuclear weapons from it as proposed by the United States.

Alexei Roshchin, Soviet negotiator at the 19-nation disarmament conference, said only a complete ban on weapons on the seabed would prevent a race for development of armaments that could be effective from there.

★ ★ ★

"It is impossible to agree," he said, with the American position that conventional military use of the ocean floor is not a realistic possibility either now or in the future.

"Objective data points to the contrary, namely that there definitely exists a danger that an arms race may ensue in this direction," Roshchin told the conference.

The United States has proposed a ban on nuclear weapons from the ocean floor beyond a three-mile territorial limit. The Soviet Union has proposed total demilitarization of the seabed beyond a 12-mile limit.

Roshchin did not spell out what type of non-nuclear weapons could be developed and placed under the sea but did refer to torpedo mines, which surface when a ship passes above them, detonating against its hull.

Another Indignity

WIDE CRITICISM is being voiced in Britain over the new agreement between the United Kingdom and West Germany under which the Wilson government is accepting a $155,000,000 loan from Bonn to help pay the foreign exchange costs of British forces stationed in Germany.

Reflecting a broad band of dissident opinion from every political quarter, British newspapers ranging from the ultra-Conservative Daily Express to the Communist Morning Star condemn the transaction for various and different reasons but all with the same tone of bitterness and disillusionment.

The Express writes: "There is only one loser in this deal: the British taxpayer who will have to foot the bill. We always lose. It seems as though our ministers think Bonn is doing us a favor by accepting the Rhine Army. That we should pay them for guarding Germany is the measure of German astuteness and Whitehall folly. No wonder the Deutchmark rides high, while we have debts of £3,000 million . . ."

The Scotsman (independent) comments: ". . . a reminder that while Germany lost the war she certainly won the peace. A main reason for the favorable balance if payments she has enjoyed and the boost of her economy over a lengthy period has been the substantial amount of foreign exchange she has received as a consequence of allied forces stationed on her soil. Had these (allied forces) been located here, our balance of payments difficulties by this time would have been a dim memory. We, however, have been on the spending, not the receiving end . . ."

The Morning Star: "The loan is only a fraction of the cost of the troops. In foreign exchange the cost is $600 million in the next two years — a big entry on the wrong side of the balance of payments. So while the government ladles out lectures on how we must make sacrifices to export more and import less in order to close the balance-of-payments gap, it is deliberately indulging in a military operation making a solution of the payments problem more difficult. It is absurd to try to conceal the stupidity of this arrangement . . ."

If the views expressed by these journals — and others — truly echo the temper of the British people at this time, it would seem that this latest indignity has been just too much for them to accept with good grace. And who can blame them?

Queered Pitch

IN SPITE OF SOME MISGIVINGS, Victoria civic authorities granted the request of promoter Paul Watson for the use of Royal Athletic Park facilities for a "rock" concert Friday.

During the program there was a spate of complaints from residents in the area, some of them blocks away, that the noise was disturbing their rest and offending their ears. This was something that was anticipated, and the contract with the city called for a minimum of noise, it is reported.

But it seems that with "rock" music the greater the noise the greater the artistic impact, and although this is hard on some sensitive people the response of Mr. Watson to Ald. Cecil Parrott's reminder during the concert that the contract called for a minimum of noise is readily explained.

"He told me this was the minimum," Ald. Parrott recalled, and did no more about it.

So much for the indignant residents.

That ushers were powerless to keep many of the 3,500 audience off the new grass where they danced and cavorted—in alleged breach of contract terms—and that the concert was running 27 minutes past the specified time limit were perhaps in themselves sufficient reason for civic employees to shut off the power when they did.

In any event that decision does not excuse the abuse which anonymous callers heaped on Ald. Parrott's defenceless head. That was not only ill-mannered but cowardly.

With insults from outraged "rock" enthusiasts and bitterness among the area residents at the disturbance of their peace, it is no wonder that Ald. Parrott reacted as he did when he said:

"Never again will we allow outdoor 'rock' concerts in Victoria. Never!"

Whatever sympathy there may be for frustrated youth, whatever the validity of the so-frequent complaint that there is a lack of facilities for their self-expression and amusement, in this instance, as the saying goes, they have queered their own pitch.

A little restraint was all that was required to avoid unpleasantness. But that is something the enthusiasts seem reluctant to employ.

Triumph and Loss

THE SOVIET SECURITY POLICE, the KGB, have had their moment of success in the exchange of British teacher Gerald Brooke and two Britons accused of drug trafficking in Russia for two Soviet spies, Peter and Helen Kroger. It was on humanitarian grounds that the British government felt itself obliged to trade two professional spies, sentenced to 20 years in 1961 for passing British naval secrets to the Russians, for an amateur convicted of subversion in Moscow. The choice was to accept the deal or see Brooke, after four years and three months of his five-year sentence, placed on trial again, this time on a charge of espionage, and possibly sentenced to another 15 years.

But for all the word to see this was a case of successful blackmail by the Soviet Union. And as a precedent, it opens the way to worse. The suggestion is now made that next time, the Russians might arrest a tourist or business visitor—almost anyone—and hold him on manufactured evidence of a grave crime for exchange with a Soviet spy imprisoned in a western nation.

The Times of London thus wrote just before Brooke was sent home that the premature release of the Krogers "would be a concession to pressure, a triumph for the KGB . . . in extricating their agents, and a potential danger to all innocent travellers to the Soviet Union in the future. There is a convention that permits the exchange of captured agents, but Brooke was not an agent: he may have been foolish, but he was guilty of no more than an indiscretion."

A triumph for the KGB it may have been, but in a way it was a loss too for Russia. No one admires a blackmailer, and this instance will have marred substantially the image of itself the Soviet Union is trying to spread abroad.

Submarine Now to Hunt Loch Ness Monster

By ROBERT CHESSHYRE from London

IT looks as if it will be a disturbed summer for "Nessie" — the monster thousands believe lurks at the bottom of Scotland's 750-foot deep Loch Ness. Activity is at its most intense and mechanized since the now celebrated day in November, 1933, when a metal worker named Hugh Gray first "saw and photographed the monster."

Assembled on the banks of the loch is a £35,000 yellow submarine, Viper Fish, brought over from America by a former U.S. Navy submariner, Dan Taylor, from Atlanta, Georgia.

So far attempts to get this latter-day, do-it-yourself Jules Verne creation into the water have been stymied by technical failures. But Mr. Taylor and the indefatigable Loch Ness Phenomena Investigation Bureau — which has been operating in the loch since 1962 — still abound with confidence.

Viper Fish is the best equipped vessel ever to undertake the search, they believe. Underwater searchlights are supplemented with directional echo-sounding equipment. Taylor will cruise at about four miles an hour. If he does see anything, he plans to fire a humane harpoon-style, compressed air dart. This will remove a tiny sample of skin without harming the monster.

This planned assault is causing Britain's noble lords considerable anxiety. An ex-Conservative member of Parliament, now Lord Kilmany, asked the government for an assurance that "any monsters that might chance to inhabit that loch would not be subjected to damage or assault."

He was advised that the investigation bureau had given local police a guarantee that their submarine operations had no "aggressive intent." The technique that Mr. Taylor intends to use to get his sample is widely used to obtain tissue from whales.

In past years the bureau has contented itself with conducting the search from the surface and banks of the loch. Last year it spent £11,000 — most of it raised in £5 fees from its 600 members and from visitors who pay to visit its exhibition caravan and buy its literature.

But the big money for the search has always come from America. One group, the American Field Enterprises Educational Corporation, so far has put $40,000 into the search.

Many hundreds of "sightings" have been reported over the years — and some rather blurred photos taken. From these reports, "believers" have built up a picture of a long, scaly monster, with a dragon-style head, which breaks the water in humps.

While the hunt goes on for the real monster, a film company has created one, which it is having dragged by yet another submarine in the shooting of a film. The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes. Close liaison is being kept between the moviemen and the hunters so that not too many sightings of the film creation are credited as the real thing.

What Sherlock Holmes ever had to do with the monster—which was first "sighted" three years after the death of the great detective's creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle — is anyone's guess. But it all adds to the undoubted fun. As one peer told the House of Lords with reference to the Scottish tourist industry: "the monster remains our greatest invisible asset."

Kierans' Boast of Less Service, More Taxes Won't Win Postmaster Popularity Contest

SOMETIME, somehow, Prime Minister Trudeau, despite all his casual what-the-heck attitude towards so many things, is going to have to do something about Postmaster-General Eric Kierans. Politically unforgivable, the PMG gave Her Majesty's loyally passive Opposition the House of Commons hotfoot.

Sheer self-defence compels the prime minister to crack down on crackup Kierans.

For such a foot-in-mouth cabinet liability hasn't adorned a ministry since the late great Clarence Decatur (The Trader) Howe got former prime minister Louis St. Laurent into the kind of trouble that destroys governments.

Old "C.D." was a tremendous achiever, a daring doer of big things, and a magnificent management man.

* * *

But he was also a wildly compulsive dropper of such thundering political bricks as "Who's to stop us?" . . . "If we want a gold-plated piano we'll damn well buy a gold-plated piano" . . . "The farmers look fat enough to me" . . . "I'll say it again, Trans-Canada is MY airline" . . . "Our business is to tax and spend, tax and spend" . . . "What's a million."

(As things have been working out since his day, with big taxing and big spending more than ever the business of government, the canny old "Trader" was dead on target with his contemptuous assessment of a million dollars. Anything these days that is measured in hundreds of millions is nickel-and-dime stuff.)

But back to Eric Kierans.

He fancies himself as an imaginative management man, a forceful innovator and an initiator with gutsy derring-do.

And perhaps he is, but definitely not with the same magnificence or abundance of a C. D. Howe in whose flamboyant style he seems to be striving to fashion himself.

But he is making some progress in following the footsteps of the master.

Especially in developing an impressive talent for saying the wrong things at the wrong time to the wrong people.

Now he has out-bigmouthed himself by ridiculing the Conservative Opposition.

This might sound ridiculous if it hadn't been carefully calculated government policy to be kind and decent to the Opposition.

All session long, the government attitude towards the Opposition was "we care," based, no doubt, on the proposition that the Liberals could scarcely hope to come across a more co-operative, helpful and understanding bunch—except for a few "yahoo" mavericks, as they're called — than the current crop of Conservatives.

Eric Kierans didn't have to do this.

He already had an impressive record of irritating the easily-annoyed Trudeau and embarrassing the government with troubles enough on its uncertain hands.

With his five-day week mail delivery—you better post it by Tuesday at the latest or it might not get there till next week—he has managed the post office into an era pre-dating the pony express.

A federally-appointed adjudicator taking a look at the mess made it official in a government report that "Electronic Eric" had set the post office back into the Nineteenth Century.

By chopping the second class mailing privileges of some 2,500 Canadian periodicals, he endeared himself, his prime minister who let him get away with it, and his government to the readers of everything from The Canadian Boy to the Legionnaire to the United Church Observer and everything in between.

Could be he gets his kicks by living dangerously, for he likes to boast and persist in proudly announcing that the taxpayers are paying more for less mail service.

But he had to top himself the other day by popping up, all uninvited, to taunt the Conservatives: "With an Opposition like that, who could be afraid?"

It was no more than a simple statement of fact, but it went against government policy of being nice and polite to the Tories.

It just might have been the thing that fired up the Opposition to stir up such a storm on the rules debate.

When the prime minister was organizing his cabinet, Eric Kierans barely made it in . . . and talk is being heard that when Trudeau re-organizes the ministry in the weeks ahead, the postmaster general likely won't find it at all difficult to make it out again.

Summer Holiday, Who Needs It? Winter's the Time for Escape

THIS summer, due to circumstances beyond my family's control, we will not be taking the traditional summer vacation.

And I think this is the nicest thing that has happened to me since I became an adult.

Mind you, I seem to be a minority when it comes to this view. Friends keep asking when I am taking my vacation, and I say, "Oh, probably next winter."

They extend condolences and then say something to the effect:

"I leave next week—boy, I can hardly wait. Two weeks up at the lake, nothing to do but fish and loaf."

But their condolences are wasted. As a Canadian, I always felt that a summer vacation was a waste of time.

Summer, for instance, is our nicest time of the year. So, instead of staying at home where you are comfortable, to enjoy those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer, you have to head for the woods.

We did this for years, too.

Then there was the cottage we had for several years on a beautiful lake. It's large, screened porch looked down the full length of the lake. And everybody who visited us told us how beautiful a spot we had.

But they had to tell us this slowly. In fact, the sentence would go like this:

"This . . .

(A pause as a powerboat driven by a five-year-old speed maniac roared past.)

"Is . . .

(Another pause as the five-year-old's playmate followed him driving a brand-new 570-horsepower special.)

"A beautiful . . .

(A longer pause as everybody held their ears and their breath as the two youngsters decided to see how close they could come to the end of our dock without really hitting it.)

"Place."

We never bothered to reply. Not out of rudeness but because conversation under such conditions took so long the ice would start to melt in the martini jug and who wants to drink "wet" martinis—even when one is roughing it in the bush?

All through those years I would sit on the porch of whatever cottage we might be inhabiting and dream wistfully of being at home. There, in my sunporch, there were no mosquitoes, no black flies.

At night the bedroom would be cool and quiet and during the day my air-conditioned office would keep me dry and even-tempered.

Naturally, I realize why Canadians traditionally take vacations in the summer. It is because the kids are out of school and that is the only time the entire family can get away as one (Heaven help us) sticky unit.

So as the summers whirled by, I nursed my own special dream. When this dream came true I would stay at home all summer—and take my vacation in the winter.

After all, that is the time when Canadians should take a vacation. Snow and ice and slush and sleet are okay, I presume, during the Christmas period. A fellow can even put up with our typical bracing Canadian winter during the month of January.

But after that the whole thing becomes a big, freezing bore. Who needs both February and March in Canada? Living through February merely to get into March, in fact, is like being warned not to trip and hurt yourself as you're walking up the steps to the gallows.

So early this summer when I discovered that because of my wife's schedule, and my daughter's summer employment, there would be no traditional trek to a cottage, I almost cried with joy.

Because this means, come February or March, Good Old Dad is going to go south where it will be warm and he will live in a hotel and people will coddle him.

I can hardly wait.

'Constitution Won't Work . . .'

Rhodesian African Dares a Challenge

By JOHN MARTIN from Salisbury, Rhodesia

A NEW African nationalist movement is working in Rhodesia to keep alive the cause of majority rule, whilst awaiting what it believes will be the "inevitable" failure of Ian Smith's new constitution to keep power in the hands of the country's quarter of a million white men.

The movement is called NAPU — the National People's Union, and at this early stage, there are already signs that the country's 4,800,000 Africans may respond to it.

NAPU was formed the day after the June 20 constitutional referendum, in which the mainly-white electorate voted overwhelmingly in favor of both an apartheid-style constitution and the severance of the final ties with Britain and the Queen by the declaration of a republic.

The white voters believe their referendum decision has ruled out the chance of an African majority government during their children's lifetime at least — and probably for ever. But the president of NAPU, Gordon Chavunduka, a 37-year-old sociology lecturer at Salisbury's University College, told me: "Constitutions don't last very long in Africa today. This constitution won't work, anyway, and so the government will be forced to change it.

* * *

"We will work within the constitutional framework to try to bring about that change sooner."

Unless a nationalist movement remains strictly within the scope of political activity permitted by the Rhodesian government, it stands a good chance of being outlawed, and its leaders jailed or restricted without trial or charge. This was the fate of the old nationalist bodies, with the result that, for the past four years, Rhodesian Africans have lacked a credible political voice.

Already, a stern warning has been issued by the minister of justice, law and order, Desmond Lardner-Burke. He thought he detected "a sinister theme" running through statements made in parliament by African Opposition members — "a veiled threat that there was going to be unrest — the Africans were going to rise up."

The minister said the Africans could advance and do whatever they wished provided they acted constitutionally. But he declared: "Woe betide them if they try to bring back into existence the conditions that existed in 1964 when we had to take strong action to stop it."

The African MPs — who between them represent fewer than 1,000 people — denied that their speeches contained any element of threat; they were merely warning, they said, that it was government action in proposing permanently to thwart African aspirations that contained the seeds of unrest and possibly renewed violence.

So NAPU is at pains to dissociate itself from any revolutionary course. At his home on the university campus, Mr. Chavunduka said he would never advocate or support the use of violence to achieve political aims.

* * *

With the formation of party branches throughout the country, there are signs that Mr. Chavunduka may possess the qualities necessary for political leadership. This would certainly make a change. Rhodesian politicians of all races in recent years have sadly lacked such qualities. Only Mr. Smith possesses the appeal to sway people with apparently effortless ease.

In only a few weeks, Mr. Chavunduka has made a great impression. During the referendum campaign, he appeared on television and argued his case convincingly, with clarity of thought rare among contemporary African politicians in Rhodesia.

He is the son of a teacher at a mission school near Umtali, and took an arts degree at the University of California and then obtained an MA at Manchester. He is working for a doctorate with a thesis on medical sociology.

In the quiet, but confident tones that have marked his early public utterances, he has criticized the government's decision to bring the African chiefs into the political arena.

"We recognize the chiefs as our leaders, but only in certain fields — and national politics is not one," he said. "The chiefs do not reflect the contemporary needs of the African people, which are focused on employment, wages, housing, education, trading. If the constitutional proposals are accepted, the chiefs will be discredited and their authority in spheres where they have some influence will be undermined."

New Antibiotics

Ancient Scourge Checked

By THOMAS LAND

TWO specialists at a Hebrew university in Jerusalem have developed a new antibiotic drug promising effective treatment against trachoma, the greatest single source of blindness plaguing mankind.

The drug, currently under trial in Israel, is based on the new antibiotic called rifampicin, developed simultaneously at the Hebrew University and the University of Glasgow in Britain. The eminent British scientific journal Nature comments that the new antibiotic agent is likely to become as widely used as penicillin to treat both bacterial and viral diseases.

Another breakthrough in the development of new antibiotics is expected from Canada where scientists at the Forest Research Laboratory in Fredericton, N.B., are believed to have discovered a new source in a fungus which kills other fungi and bacteria—and causes disease in man.

* * *

"Drugs that inhibit the growth of viruses in cells," explains one specialist here, "usually strongly damage or kill the cells themselves and, as a result, are of no use in medicine. But rifampicin is more selective: it blocks viral and bacterial growth at concentrations that are not toxic to cells."

Scientific observers have welcomed the Israeli achievement in medicine as a development of immense potential benefit to mankind. The trachoma agent, they explain, is one of a group of tiny organisms called the rickettsias which have much in common with bacteria: "Frequently, however, they are parasites of insects or mammals. Those that infect human beings cause diseases such as psittacosis or parrot fever and Rocky Mountain spotted fever as well as trachoma.

"The similarities between trachoma agent and the bacteria have prompted Dr. Y. Becker and Dr. Z. Zakay-Rones of the Hebrew University to test rifampicin at concentrations that have no ill effects on cells. Their experiments prove the point."

* * *

The have found that when cells are infected with trachoma and dosed with very low concentrations of rifampicin, the disease causing agents fail to multiply. The new antibiotic also affects a range of other viruses, such as those responsible for smallpox.

There is, however, a snag. The trachoma agent is not equally sensitive to rifampicin at all stages of its growth cycle. It is most sensitive in the earliest stages of the cycle, but afterwards acquires increasing resistance.

But the new technique itself is at the earliest stages of its development. It is already capable of arresting infection leading to blindness. There is a good chance that, given time and continued intensive research, man's promising new weapon against that terrible disease which affects about one-sixth of mankind mainly in the developing world will attain a high degree of sophistication.

* * *

Laboratory cultivation of the disease-causing agent had been unsuccessfully attempted for many years until a team of research workers in China finally isolated the virus a decade ago. A visiting British scientist brought home samples of the strain shortly afterwards, encouraging a new burst of research work in many countries. The successful application of the new antibiotic in Israel is likely to have a similar effect.

The other promising development in the search for new antibiotics in Canada results from a chance discovery in the course of a study of fungi that cause disease in certain birch trees. By the end of 1966, North American scientists had isolated a few milligrams of the new antifungal compound, and it proved lethal to a wide variety of micro-organisms. Its short-term ill effect on human beings is likely to be shown as relatively harmless.

The Canadian scientists have succeeded in cracking the molecular secret of the new antibiotic substance, enabling the team to produce it artificially.

Patient Idealist Gets Chance to Weld Europe

By DON COOK, from Paris

There has been no more important political drama in Europe in the last decade than the long manoeuvring between Charles de Gaulle, man of power, and Jean Monnet, man of influence, over Europe's future.

Today the 79-year-old man of power is in retirement and the 81-year-old man of influence is in ascendancy. For years de Gaulle ridiculed, smashed, obstructed and barricaded the European dream of unity for which Monnet had worked since the darkest days of the Second World War and demanded instead a nationalistic Europe under French primacy.

●

But Monnet never stopped working for his goal, never became bitter and never lost faith that in the end his ideals would prevail.

Suddenly, with de Gaulle gone, everybody is talking about getting Europe moving again, which basically means bringing Britain and the other applicants into an enlarged common market.

★ ★ ★

It is a moment which Monnet has been waiting for with his "Action Committee for a United States of Europe" for a very long time.

In 1940, when the French army was collapsing and the Petain forces were gathering to seek an armistice and take France out of the war, it was Jean Monnet who suggested to Brig. Gen. Charles de Gaulle in London that they propose an "indissolvable union" of France and Britain to Winston Churchill.

★ ★ ★

Churchill bought it, sold it to the British cabinet and offered it to French premier Paul Reynaud who grasped at it like a drowning man a straw. But Reynaud was ousted by the Petain forces before any action could be taken.

Monnet thought up his plan for a post-war European coal and steel community while he was working in Washington during the Second World War as head of the Free French supply mission.

He first discussed it in 1942 with Paul Henri-Spaak, who was wartime foreign minister of the Belgian government in exile. But it was not until 1952 that Monnet found the moment and the man to move it from idea to action. The man was Robert Schuman and with the launching of the Schuman Plan, Europe was at last on the move toward unity.

Monnet

BACKGROUND

As first president of the high authority of the coal and steel community, in Luxembourg, Monnet built the embryo organization which expanded into the 5,000-strong civil service of the European common market.

★ ★ ★

After two years in Luxembourg, Monnet turned to drafting the Euratom treaty for six European countries. In 1955 he gave up active governmental work to form his influential action committee. Monnet has never been a cabinet minister, never elected to office.

"De Gaulle is a man of decision but not of action," Monnet once remarked. "A man of decision says yes or no to questions which are put before him. But a man of action has to work with all kinds of diverse forces, pulling them together to get something done. There is a very great difference between taking decisions and creating action."

The recent Monnet action committee meeting in Brussels was its most important session in years — attended for the first time by a foreign minister in office, Michael Stewart of Great Britain.

The meeting was followed a week later by a regular meeting of the foreign ministers of the six common market countries at which a more positive atmosphere was registered on the question of British entry into the market than at any time in the last three years.

The new French foreign minister, Maurice Schumann, proposed that a European summit of the Six be held in October or November in The Hague to discuss British entry. In the words of Joseph Luns, the veteran Dutch foreign minister, "The veto has been lifted — we are talking again."

But though optimistic as always, Monnet also is realistic. As the Six open the door for negotiations with the British, they are also going to be taking some decisions among themselves, on agricultural policy in particular, which the British are likely to find costly and difficult to accept.

★ ★ ★

Everywhere, right now, the atmosphere is changing rapidly but Monnet's words at a press conference after his Brussels action committee meeting were realistic:

"The difficulty is not in the expression of the will — but in the will."

The test of will for Europe may not be long in coming.

Mysterious Mr. X Makes Cash Deals

Biafra Buys Air Fleet

By ANTONY TERRY, from Bonn

In a move likely to escalate the fighting in Nigeria's civil war, Biafra has bought from private owners a small fleet of Swedish-built light aircraft that can be equipped with rockets. The planes, called MFI 9-13s, are similar to ones flown by Count Carl Gustav von Rosen, the Swedish pilot who bombed and strafed federal Nigerian targets last May. The count has recently returned to Biafra.

★ ★ ★

These purchases — which beat by only a few hours a ban by the Swedish government on aircraft sales to Biafra — probably will heat up the air war over Nigeria, particularly when added to other recent aircraft purchases elsewhere in Europe.

The mysterious African buyer of the MFIs does not sign his name on any document. Instead he signs on behalf of the Abidjan Flying Club and claims he comes from the capital of the Ivory Coast, a former French colony.

★ ★ ★

One man who sold a Swedish-built MFI aircraft to the African, is Dr. Arne Nyholm, a dentist in Lidkoeping in central Sweden. He says: "I flew the aircraft to Copenhagen in Denmark on Monday where I met the African who was known only as "Mr. X." We signed the papers for the transfer of ownership of the plane to the Abidjan Flying Club and I was paid 60,000 Swedish kroners in cash ($11,700). This was 7,000 kroners ($1,300) more than I paid for the aircraft when I bought it a few months ago.

Dr. Nyholm's aircraft, like the previous Swedish planes, reportedly went to France to be equipped with French-designed Matra rockets. Later the aircraft will be dismantled and flown to Biafra in French-controlled freighter aircraft.

★ ★ ★

Swedish reports say five of these aircraft, which have a flying range of 500 miles, have been bought by Biafran interests to beat the Swedish export ban. A 41-year-old Swedish flying engineer, Carl Ljungberg, is going to Africa to train pilots for the aircraft. Ljungberg says his training centre will be at Abidjan on the Ivory Coast.

★ ★ ★

Among other aircraft reported this week to have been bought recently by Biafran agents are two C-47 Dakotas.

The Dakotas were seen recently at Faro in Portugal where according to pilots' reports, they were being equipped with bomb racks and extra fuel tanks.

The Swedish government's export ban has stopped further deals by "Mr. X" with Swedish civilians.

★ ★ ★

The Count, now approaching 60, was, earlier this month, in Libreville, the capital of French-controlled Gabon and the centre of arms shipments to Biafra. Raids by von Rosen and his pilots in May devastated Nigerian targets such as airfields and power stations.

Western business circles in Frankfurt report also that, through intermediaries, Israel has sold Biafra large quantities of surplus Soviet-designed 7.62 mm ammunition captured during the seven day's war. The Biafrans had been finding it difficult to obtain this ammunition for their Russian-designed automatic rifles.

Literary Establishment Loses Dissenters

Soviet Liberals Purged

By AARON EINFRANK, from Moscow

In another victory for right-wing, neo-Stalinist forces here, the poet Yevgeni Yevtushenko has been purged from the editorial board of the magazine Yunost.

Also ousted in a purge of liberals were playwright Victor Rozov and the talented young short-story writer Vasily Aksionov.

Yunost (Youth), along with the magazine Novy Mir, has been one of the few voices of liberalism and anti-Stalinism in the Soviet literary establishment.

★ ★ ★

Both Novy Mir and Yunost have been under heavy attack during the past year from right-wing conservative magazines like October and Ogonek. However, the decisive attack appears to have been made in May by Kommunist, the authoritative journal of the central committee of the Soviet Communist Party.

It was after the Kommunist article that rumors circulated in Moscow to the effect that liberals had been purged from both Yunost and Novy Mir.

★ ★ ★

The latest issue of Yunost did not carry the names of the liberals, thus reconfirming the purge rumors. They have been replaced by more orthodox writers.

The question now arises whether the editor of Novy Mir, Alexander Tvardovsky, has also been axes as the rumors indicate. The issue of Kommunist which blasted Yunost also attacked Novy Mir. Tvardovsky has been sacked once before.

★ ★ ★

Yevtushenko, 35, gained world-wide fame during the Khrushchev era as Russia's leading poet. At the time he was particularly outspoken in warning against a return of Stalinism. He is reported to have protested the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Although the 53-year-old Rozov is probably the most popular playwright in the U.S.S.R., his plays recently have come under severe criticism for depicting weaknesses and corruption in Soviet life.

★ ★ ★

Aksionov, 36, is considered to be among the brightest young Soviet prose writers. His mother is Eugenia Ginzburg who detailed her sufferings in a Stalinist concentration camp in the book Journey Into The Whirlwind (although published in the West, the book has never been printed here).

Yunost has been about the only outlet for unknown young writers in the U.S.S.R. Novy Mir has concentrated on mature, controversial literature.

★ ★ ★

Tvardovsky, a poet in his own right, was responsible for the publication of many controversial works in Novy Mir, including A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch, by Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

When destalinization was the policy of the Soviet state, the magazine was permitted to be controversial. However, this is no longer the case as is witnessed by the officially-approved vicious attacks that have been levelled against Novy Mir by the rampaging right-wing.

★ ★ ★

Under the present neo-Stalinist dispensation, artists are supposed to take a "positive attitude" by singing the praises of Soviet life instead of finding defects.

Naturally, this outlook protects the politicians in power.

According to the official line here, such positivism is justified by the need to keep up a united front against "imperialism" i.e. the West and Western liberal ideas.

Golds and Oils Bear Brunt of Sharp Fall

TORONTO (CP)—The market posted its fourth consecutive daily loss, falling sharply after a midday attempted rally collapsed.

The industrial index fell 2.09 to 165.80, its lowest level since last Aug. 2.

Golds, down a record 25.1 Monday, dropped 9.43 to 168.82, their lowest level since December, 1967.

The gold index has fallen 50.66 in the last four days.

Dome Mines, down 9% Monday, dropped 5 to 50, Campbell Red Lake ½ to 22, Bralorne 35 cents to $2.65 and Giant Yellowknife ¾ to 10.

Western oils, off 11.8 Monday, lost 5.11 to 211.20, their lowest level since last August.

Mines More Lower

VANCOUVER — Mines were mainly lower with drops of .35 in Adanac and Consolidated Rexspar. Magnum and Silver Star were off .15 each. Valley Copper was off .25 and Silver Standard and Buttle each dipped .10.

On the higher side were Yukon up .11 at .65, Gibraltar up .09 at 1.65 and Highmont up .10 at 1.35.

Dynalta was up .50 and Syracuse up .40 in oils.

The industrial picture was mixed with Block, EDP, Driver, Whonnock, and NWL Finance higher, and with Cunningham, Datatech, House of Stein and B.C. Sugar on the downside.

Prices Chopped

MONTREAL (CP)—A small onslaught of afternoon selling chopped prices.

The rash of losses followed a brief rally that checked a steep early slide.

In banks, Royal dropped ⅝ to 19¼, Commerce ½ to 18, Toronto-Dominion ⅝ to 18, Nova Scotia ⅜ to 20½ and Montreal ⅛ to 13⅝.

Among industrials, Velcro Industries declined 2 to 46½, Canadian Pacific 2 to 72½, Radio Engineering 1⅝ to 20, Falconbridge 1½ to 121½, Canada and Dominion Sugar 1⅜ to 32⅝, Du Pont 1¼ to 28⅜.

In senior mines and oils, Rio Algom was off 1¼ to 16¼, Denault ⅜ to 15, Cominco ⅜ to 30⅜ and Husky Oil ⅛ to 14⅞.

No Support for Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—An effort to finish in the winning column faded in late trading and the market again slid to another loss with the Dow Jones industrial average closing at its lowest level in more than 2½ years.

The technical advance that enabled the DJI to shake off an early loss and climb 6.59 points by 11:30 a.m. failed to draw a substantial following, and the indicator coasted to a 4.27 loss and another new 1969 low.

The DJI's close at 801.96 was the lowest it had closed since the 791.14 of Jan. 4, 1967.

The NYSE index lost 0.42 to 49.31.

Institutional activity stepped up with 58 blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded, compared with 43 Monday.

Cash Squeeze On—So's Inflation

The squeeze on the Canadian money supply and pressure on the banks to restrain their lending is beginning to be felt, but Dominion Securities says in its July Investment brochure there is "still no sign of a slowdown in Canada's excessive rate of inflation."

But it points out a number of factors at work are essentially anti-inflationary.

These are — slowdown in exports, housing and industrial production, slowdown in government spending and increase in government revenues, increase in the level of unemployment, reduction in the rate of monetary expansion and further increase in interest rates.

Dominion Securities says evidence of the slowdown in the growth of the money supply is clear. Up $1,303,000,000 in the third quarter of 1968, its growth shrank to $762,000,000 in the fourth quarter then to $745,000,000 in the first quarter of 1969, and it estimates the increase will only be $296,000,000 in the second quarter.

★ ★ ★

As stock and bond markets continue to slide in anticipation of the effects of the squeeze on money and credit, the question now arises whether the Bank of Canada will persist with its firm restrictions until "inflation and inflation psychosis diminish materially even though slower growth and higher unemployment emerge."

"This we should know by the end of the summer," concludes DS.

GUSHER UNDER CONTROL

The gushing natural gas well on Melville Island in the Canadian Arctic has been brought under partial control by wild-well fighter Red Adair of Houston, Tex., but it will be several days before the drill can be reinserted and drilling resumed.

The well is the first of some 14 to 17 to be drilled by Panarctic Oil consortium in the next three years.

It started to gush nearly three weeks ago and, although initially there were no flames, the gas went aflame just over a week ago when struck by static electricity. The blaze lasted 12 hours before being extinguished.

Due to be drilled to 10,000 feet, the well blew out of control at 8,240 feet, throwing up a mixture of natural gas and salt water.

As a first well it is said to be highly encouraging, but there was some disappointment that gas and not oil had been struck.

Burns Foods net profit was up to $723,080 (90 cents a share) from $192,220 (62 cents).

MARGIN CURBED

The Vancouver Stock Exchange has ended margin buying on securities selling at less than $2.

Purchasers of stocks selling for less than $2 can no longer take advantage of the 60 per cent minimum marginal requirement, formerly applied to all securities selling for more than $1.

The rule means buyers need only put up 60 per cent of a stock's value. The change will permit those buying stocks at $2 to continue on margin as long as the value of the stock does not drop below $1.50.

OFFER WITHDRAWN

Asamera Oil has temporarily withdrawn its plan to offer rights to its shareholders to purchase new shares.

The offering was scheduled to be made to holders of record July 31, but the company and the underwriters have agreed not to proceed with the offering because of general market conditions. A new date will be set later, says Asamera.

Asamera is conducting an oil exploration program in Indonesia.

Crux Criticizes B.C. Hearing

'Second-Hand Evidence' Hit

By KEN PRITCHARD

NASSAU (CP) — A. G. Duncan Crux Tuesday described as second-hand evidence material in a bulky deposition from Vancouver supporting 10 charges against him and others of circulating or publishing mutual fund prospectuses which they knew contained false material with the intent to induce persons to invest money.

The 63-year-old former head of the Commonwealth group of companies sympathized with Nassau lawyer Patrick Toothe, representing the Canadian government in its effort to extradite Crux, for having "to make bricks without straw" in his argument for extradition. The application is based solely on the evidence forwarded from an eight-day Vancouver hearing.

SECONDARY EVIDENCE

"I have no hesitancy at all in criticizing Magistrate J. Sedgwick for admitting secondary evidence," said Crux during a hearing within the main hearing over the definition of the word "publishing."

Magistrate John Baily said that extradition on the 10 charges which he is considering here seems to depend on the proving that publication in fact occurred of company prospectuses.

The magistrate said he hoped to have a written decision this morning on whether publication of prospectuses of Diversified Income Securities Ltd. of Vancouver, a mutual fund managing company which Crux once headed, had been proven under Bahamian law in the depositions from Vancouver.

CRUX ARGUMENT

Crux argued there was no good evidence produced to show that the prospectuses had been published. The best evidence, he said, would have been provided by one or more witnesses testifying they had participated in the distribution of or had received the prospectuses.

He also complained there was no evidence he ever saw any of the prospectuses or that his signature is on any original document. Identification of documents by witnesses in Vancouver had been based on "copies of copies of copies," rather than on originals.

Toothe relied for his proof of publication on testimony that the 10 prospectuses had been filed with the British Columbia superintendent of brokers and with Commonwealth Trust Co., a part of the Crux organization.

BAHAMIAN LAW

These are both "members of the public," under Bahamian law, Toothe argued. He also cited a printed declaration on several prospectuses saying they were to be filed with the registrars of companies in Alberta and Saskatchewan and that would make them available to the public.

Crux argued that no evidence had been produced to show the prospectuses were filed in either province.

Toothe defended the Canadian court which assembled the five sets of depositions covering 21 charges against Crux of fraud and theft after Crux was arrested in Nassau on June 3 on a Canadian extradition warrant.

"This court cannot presume that a tribunal in another jurisdiction will take evidence in a way not in accordance with the rules of evidence in force there," Toothe told Baily.

For nearly two hours in a Tuesday morning session, Toothe explored the contents of the prospectuses, extracting statements on which the British Columbia authorities based their allegations against Crux. He said the Diversified Income Securities prospectus listed members of an investment advisory committee and payments to the committee.

Toothe said the presence of the information was a clear implication that the mutual fund managers wished the public to believe an investment board was active on behalf of the investors.

Toothe, guiding the magistrate through the transcript of evidence and exhibits given before a Vancouver magistrate in June, said all the evidence tended to show Crux, then head of the Commonwealth pyramid of companies, was a busy adviser on investments but that other listed advisers made little or no contribution.

The magistrate is studying 10 of the 21 counts which form the basis of Canada's extradition application. The other counts are to be pursued later in the hearing.

However, Toothe indicated Tuesday that if the magistrate finds sufficient evidence to extradite in the first 10 counts, Canada might not find it necessary to proceed with the other 11 charges before the magistrate.

Baily must determine whether the British Columbia evidence and exhibits establish a prima facie case for extradition under Canadian and Bahamian laws—that a reasonable suspicion of guilt exists and that the accused should face trial.

Fight U.S. Firms Wilson Warns

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson said Tuesday night Europe should unite to combat the threat of American domination of Europe's industries.

The prime minister reaffirmed Britan's determination to join the Common Market at a Guildhall meeting of the British council of the European movement.

Wilson said Britain still supported the Atlantic alliance and friendship with the United States.

He added "but equally there will be few, if any, particularly among the industrialists, who will feel that there is a real future for Europe or for Britain if we allow American business and American industry so to dominate the strategic growth industries of our individual countries, that they and not we are able to determine the pace and direction of Europe's industrial advance."

Rocks Given Boost

New Westminster	15	10	5	179	122	20
Vancouver	20	7	13	156	201	14
VICTORIA	18	3	15	140	205	6

Next game: Tonight—Coquitlam at Victoria, 8:30, Memorial Arena.

Victoria Shamrocks still face almost insurmountable odds but their slender hopes for a Western Lacrosse Association playoff spot got a little boost Tuesday night.

New Westminster's second-place Salmonbellies gave it by defeating third-place Vancouver Carlings, 12-11, in Vancouver.

That left the Rocks eight points away from the last playoff spot but they now have two games in hand and get a chance to cut the margin tonight at Memorial Arena, where they meet the leading Coquitlam Adanacs.

Rocks, hoping for an upset like last Wednesday's 11-8 victory over New Westminster, may be missing junior Denis Somner because of the flu.

However, junior Mike Beaulac, who scored five goals in the New Westminster game, will dress on Shamrocks' main forward line with Bill Munroe and Nirmal Dillon.

Barry Forbes will start in goal.

Ed Goss, who set up four other goals, Mac Tyler and Larry Henry each scored twice for Salmonbellies.

Other scorers were Wayne Shuttleworth, Steve d'Easum, Paul Parnell, Dave Tory, Wayne Goss and Ray Bennie.

Gord Frederickson, who also had four assists, and Bob Salt led Vancouver with four goals each.

Taki Vohalis, Brian Davidson and Bill Bourchier got the other Vancouver goals.

It will be at 330 yards, same distance as for the scheduled races which have brought five horses from Calgary and Spokane and seven from Victoria. In another match race, Hajnal's Penny Ridge will attempt to outrace a high-powered sports car at 220 yards. First race is scheduled to start at 7 p.m.—(Wm. E. John).

Eskimos Rout Bombers To Start CFL Season

WINNIPEG — Hard running by Jim Thomas and Thermus Butler and the pass-catching of rookie Terry Swarn led Edmonton Eskimos to a 33-0 rout of Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night.

It was the first game of the Canadian Football League season, and there was never any doubt about the outcome after a feeling-out period of 25 minutes in which the only scoring was a field goal kicked in the last minute of the first quarter.

Then Thomas and Butler started getting yardage on ground plays to set up passing which produced three of the four touchdowns.

Swarn a speedy flanker from Colorado State, caught all three of the touchdown passes. He started by taking a pass from Thomas, who had taken a pitchout from Charley Fulton, for a 42-yard touchdown at 10:31 of the second quarter. Three minutes later, he combined with quarterback Corey Colehour for a 46-yard touchdown play, then completed his scoring in the third quarter on a 37-yard play with Colehour.

Butler got the other touchdown, plunging over from a yard after he and Thomas had played big roles in a long march.

Dave Cutler, a Victoria youngster from Simon Fraser University, converted twice, kicked 29 and 33-yard field goals and got a single point out of a wide field-goal try.

SHOCKER

Bombers never recovered after Swarn's first touchdown. Their defence rushed up to cover Thomas after the pitchout and Swarn was all alone for the perfect pass to the opposite side of the field.

Swarn shook off the initial tackler on his second scoring run, started by a short pass, and couldn't be caught as he raced down the sideline.

Bombers were as completely outplayed as the score would indicate. They got only seven first downs and their net offence amounted to no more than 162 yards.

John Schneider and Don Weiss, who played the second half, completed eight of 24 passes for 102 yards.

BALANCED ATTACK

Eskimos had a net offence of 423 yards in a balanced attack in which they completed 12 of 22 passes for 213 yards.

Butler carried 15 times for 123 yards, Thomas 12 times for 64 yards and Swarn caught four passes for 127 yards.

Tonight's game between Calgary Stampeders and B.C. Lions can be heard on Radio CFAX (1070) and CKNW (980) starting at 8:00.

Cards Closing In

New Reason to Worry

Leo Durocher won an acquittal Tuesday from owner Phil Wrigley but St. Louis Cardinals started to become a nagging worry for the manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Durocher was called on to explain a sort of a lost weekend. He spent it attending a parents' reception at the school being attended by his recently acquired step-sons after leaving his club before the completion of Saturday's game complaining of stomach pains.

QUICK VERDICT

He rejoined the Cubs Monday, met Wrigley Tuesday and was officially absolved of any wrongdoing in 10 minutes.

"We had our signals twisted," Wrigley said. "We got straightened out in 10 minutes. There was no apology asked and none was given."

Not long after the statement, Durocher had other cause to worry. First, the Cubs took a 4-2 defeat from San Francisco Giants. Then, a few hours later, St. Louis Cardinals trounced San Diego Padres, 10-4.

The Cardinals are four and a half games behind New York Mets in the National League's Eastern Division, but the defending champions are probably a bigger worry to the Cubs than the upstart New Yorkers.

The Cards are still nine games away with 59 games left for both clubs, but they have made an appreciable gain this month, winning 19 and losing eight games while the Cubs have done no better than 14-13.

If both clubs maintain that pace until the end of the season, the Cubs will be passed.

As for the Mets, rained out Tuesday, they are 15-9 this month and only one game out on the losing side with 66 games left. They, too, will pass the Cubs if both clubs finish out the season at their July pace.

WILLIE DID IT

Willie Mays beat the Cubs with a tie-breaking triple in the seventh inning, scoring the insurance run on a sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey.

Seven runs in the seventh brought the Cardinals from behind and gave them their 17th win in 22 games.

Minnesota Twins gained a half game on Oakland Athletics in the American League's Western Division by two-timing Detroit Tigers, 5-2 and 11-5.

Athletics, now three and a half games back, defeated New York Yankees, 6-5, with a three-run eighth inning which featured a two-run triple by pinch-hitter Ramon Webster.

Lake Hill Remains Unbeaten

Lake Hill became the only undefeated team in the round-robin, double-knockout tournament at Hampton Park for the Little League Baseball Victoria district championship Tuesday by defeating previously undefeated Nationals, 8-2.

The tournament continues tonight with Lake Hill playing Hampton, which has lost once, at 6:30. Regardless of the results, Nationals again meet Lake Hill Thursday.

Ken Garraway gained the victory with a six-hitter and received plenty of support from his teammates, who managed 11 hits off two National pitchers to bunch two runs in each of the first and sixth innings and four in the third inning.

Lake Hill scored two unearned runs in the top of th first inning but Dave Newsom brought Nationals to within a run in the bottom of the inning, driving in Randy Price with a single.

However, Nationals committed three of their six errors in the third inning to set up the big rally for Lake Hill. Garraway and Gord Gummer each had run-scoring singles.

HARRY YOUNG

In a dark grove in the Vancouver golfing jungle one day last week the B.C. Golf Association met and picked the four-player junior team to play for the province in the inter-provincial team matches due for decision Aug. 27-28 at Kelowna.

An exclusive report in a Vancouver paper on Saturday morning announced that the team consisted of Doug Roxburgh, Ken Carlson, Dave Mick and Carl Schwantje.

It wasn't very surprising, because these were the four boys who finished 1-2-3-4 in the B.C. junior championship earlier in the week at Shaughnessy.

Still there were two of these lads from the sleepy old Island community of Victoria, and there are some two thousand golfers in these parts who pay their annual dues to the B.C. Golf Association for the privilege of "belonging," so it seemed reasonable that the information would be made available here.

Cec Holland, president of the B.C. Golf Association and a member of the Gorge Vale Golf Club, said that to his belief the team selection had been phoned to the Victoria newspapers on Friday evening, and he concluded that "they did not use it."

The newspapers say they were not informed, and that no phone call to their knowledge was received from B.C. Golf Association. Nor had they any intimation in advance when the team would be chosen.

"I am not happy with the local papers," said Holland. "They have been making untruthful statements about the BCGA." (He was referring to criticism of the Willingdon Cup team selection.

In any case, belated though it may be, the congratulations of the Victoria golfing public will go to Mick and Schwantje on their selection.

They are two fine players and they should do very well at Kelowna.

It is the second year in succession Victoria has supplied two players to the provincial team — last year it was Cec Ferguson who went in with Mick.

Also selected at Friday's meeting of the BCGA was the provincial "B" team which plays against Alberta.

One of the Uplands hopefuls, Keithe Burrell, is on the team along with Steve Berry, Robert Kerr and Paul Chiffer from Vancouver.

The selection is based upon age limitations. Two of the boys must be not more than 15 and two not more than 17.

The match will be played over 36 holes at Richmond G.C. in Vancouver July 31 and Aug. 1.

It was unfortunate that in what was probably a lean year for the Canadian Open that a Canadian player did not manage to finish in the top spot, but the absence of many of the gold-trail players had one effect. It kept more than usual of the Open purse in Canadian hands.

At the half way stage it looked as if Vaughan Trapp would be in the big money, but the Victoria pro slipped in the last two rounds and had to be content with $1,562. However, Trapp focussed a lot of attention upon himself with his first two rounds, and it should help him along the way of the travelling pro.

Victoria's other entry, Bill Walcham, survived the half way cut with 146, and then went one better on the second half with 145 to earn himself $701. All in all, the Canadian contingent lifted about $30,000 in prizes, or about one sixth of the total.

The Canadian pros now move out west, where next month the CPGA open will be held at Point Grey and the B.C. Open at Uplands.

Trapp and Walcham should manage to add to their accumulation of dollars in these events on more-familiar terrain.

The second leg of the Inter City junior match between Vancouver and Victoria moves to Royal Colwood on Sunday.

The first match played at Qualicum last weekend finished with the Vancouver boys ahead, 5½ points to 6½, in the 10 singles and five four-ball matches.

Among the Victoria winners at Qualicum were Schwantje and Dave McCall, who played close to par in their matches. Mick was beaten by Roxburgh, in the top match.

John Carlow and Stu Mitchell of Gorge Vale retained the city senior buttons last week when they held off the challenge of Peter McIntyre and Bob Anderson of Victoria, closing the match out on the 12th green at Gorge Vale.

Next challengers are Peter Bowe and Harry Leinweber of Cedar Hill at Uplands.

Don Billsborough, assistant pro at Uplands is running a caddy school on Friday evening at 6:30, for all those who have applied for jobs at the B.C. Open (Aug. 13-17).

The school is for boys who have not had practical experience of caddying.

Not Our Doing Say the Lions

B.C. Lions, who open their Canadian Football League schedule tonight at Empire Stadium against Calgary Stampeders, want it to be known that they are not responsible for discontinuation of the cablevision service of their home games to Victoria.

The denial was made Tuesday by general-manager Denny Veitch following a number of protests from Victoria football fans.

"We," Veitch said in a telephone call, "did not cancel cablevision. The reason that there is no cablevision available in Victoria is simply that Victoria Cablevision Ltd. would not pay the rights fee."

Veitch said that the fee "would have been the same this year as it was last year, which is approximately three cents per customer per game."

"The B.C. Lions Football Club," he said, "is vitally concerned with making it easy for Vancouver Island football enthusiasts to see the Lions in action."

He added that it would still be possible for arrangements to be made to present the remaining seven games of the Lions' home schedule to Victoria cablevision subscribers.

Cablevision company officials could not be reached for comment last night.

Combos Eliminated From Playoff Action

Don Frampton's three-run homer sparked Century Inn to an 8-3 victory over CFB Combos on Tuesday at Heywood Avenue Park, which dropped the losers out of the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League playoffs.

It was the final game of the season for Combos, the early-season leaders, and they needed a victory to retain their slim chance of tying either Century or Colwood Inn for the fourth and final playoff spot.

Century moved a half-game in front of Colwood in the battle for third place.

Frampton singled and scored the tie-breaking run on Gord Rutherford's double in the fifth inning before sparking Century's five-run outburst in the sixth.

ALEC MERRIMAN

Tyee interest is starting to show among Vancouver Island anglers as the season for big chinook salmon nears. Coho fishing so far this year has been a real bust, but chinook fishing is a little brighter and outlook for tyee is promising.

Big chinooks, the occasional one reaching the tyee size of 30 pounds, are now providing plenty of sport for Buzz Bombers off the Comox Bar, which runs from the tip of Tree Island off the northern end of Denman Island to the Comox Bluffs at the Comox Spit.

Bob Gardner has taken at least two tyee from the bar and last week Gordon King and partner hooked 18 chinooks on Buzz Bomb, two of them going 20 and 26 pounds. Guide Len Francis and Joe Hess of Montreal have taken them up to 26 pounds. Bill Heydenuk is another Courtenay area angler who has been getting in on the action.

The shallow bar—only about 25 feet deep at its deepest spot—is fished on an ebbing tide which sweeps needlefish and herring against the bar.

These fish are not thought to be the same chinooks which enter the Comox tyee pool between Royston and the Comox docks around Aug. 7. Some may be tyee heading for the Puntledge River, but most are thought to be feeder chinooks heading for the Qualicum area.

Since B.C. Hydro established a power station on the Puntledge the Comox tyee pool fishing has dwindled to almost nothing. Steps are being taken to rehabilitate the once famous run, but success is so far not recorded in any better fishing.

* * *

Campbell River is the place to watch for the first big tyee fishing.

It was Aug. 6 last year when W. A. Shotts of Corvallis, Ore., hooked a 71-pounder in the famed tyee pool—the third biggest tyee ever taken on sports tackle from Vancouver Island waters.

Alberni Inlet waters produce more tyee salmon than Campbell River, but Campbell River is the more famous and usually produces the biggest trophy fish in more concentrated fishing water.

The famed B.C. Tyee Club of Campbell River offers bronze buttons for 30 to 40 pounders, silver buttons for 40 to 50-pounders, gold for 50 to 60 pounders, diamond for 60 to 70-pounders and ruby for heavier than 70-pounders.

But salmon must be caught on tackle registered by the club . . . six to nine-foot rods, artificial lures with only single hooks qualifying for club trophies but treble hooks allowed for buttons, and line with breaking strength of 20 pounds for extra light tackle classification and breaking strength of 30 pounds or less for light tackle classification.

Power boats are not allowed under club rules, but anglers not seeking club awards fish the pools with power boats in great numbers.

Although they are not too productive from a power boat, the big spoons — Gibbs No. 8, Wonder 88 and Ghandi — are preferred by the rowboaters, who are able to get that steady beat to the spoon that is so necessary.

A power boat runs too smoothly to get the beat for a spoon, but with oars the guides can match the tides, drop back now and again, and watch the rod for that steady beat, and that little tell-tale change in the beat which indicates a tyee is mouthing the lure and you must strike it to set the hook.

For spoons from a rowboat use two ounces of weight, 30 feet of line from reel to weight, and 20 feet from weight to spoon.

Most of the big tyee, especially from power boats, are taken on big plugs . . . Wallace Highliners, Lucky Louies, Rex Field, Spur X and Tomicks. Use four to six ounces of weight, 30 feet from reel to weight, 30 feet from weight to lure.

Last year Buzz Bombs and Deadly Dick lures used by spin casters proved so deadly for the big tyee salmon in the comparatively small pools that federal fisheries closed off the pools early in the season.

In the Tyee Pool off the split best fishing is to find the dropoff from the bar and fish along it, but in Frenchman's pool you cruise the waters searching for the fish.

* * *

Alberni Valley Tyee Club season opened on Sunday, but up until Monday no tyee (in those waters the club recognizes a salmon 18 pounds or heavier as a tyee) had been recorded, although a 16½-pounder was taken from Franklin River waters Sunday and there were reports of others being hooked. The big chinooks are definitely in Barkley Sound, heading up the Inlet.

In Alberni Inlet they take them on flasher and bait and big plugs.

Imlach Turns Down Minnesota Job Offer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (CP) —George "Punch" Imlach, former coach and general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, has decided not to accept a contract coaching Minnesota North Stars, the National Hockey League club announced Tuesday night.

Wren Blair, general manager of the Western Division North Stars, said Imlach telephoned him from Toronto and told him he had decided to accept a private business offer.

Nature of the job was not disclosed.

RELUCTANT

Blair said Imlach told him the decision was "most difficult." He said Imlach said "despite several other offers in hockey it narrowed down to Minnesota and the position I have decided to accept."

The North Stars issued a resume of Imlach's conversation with Blair.

"I wish to thank Wren and the Minnesota owners for what I feel was a most generous offer and for their confidence in feeling that I was capable of handling the situation in Minnesota.

"As far as money goes, I'd have to say, that Minnesota's offer was most acceptable. Then too, it was a challenge I was reluctant to turn down. But, I had to make a choice.

"After I made the decision I naturally wondered if it was the right one. There's no way of predicting that. But who knows? Things may change in years to come. . . .

". . . For that reason and because of my close relationship with Wren, I want to wish him and the North Stars the best of luck."

Blair expressed regret at Imlach's decision, but said he understood the circumstances.

DECISION SOON

"I'm very sorry we did not get Punch. He's a fine hockey man and we have been friends for some time. . . . However I understand his family's desire to remain in Toronto and I respect the decision Punch felt he should make."

Asked about the coaching position, Blair said he would meet soon with Walter Bush, president of the North Stars, and "we should come to a decision in a short time."

Mid-Summer Hockey Game For Victoria

Victoria is to have an annual mid-summer hockey game.

Announcement was made Tuesday by Milan Marcetta, head coach at the Esquimalt Hockey School.

He said the first game would be played at Esquimalt Municipal Centre on Aug. 23 and is already at work lining up players for the professional All-Stars, who will meet an amateur team.

Marcetta and Bob Barlow, two former Victoria Maple Leafs now owned by NHL clubs, and Doug Anderson, coach of the Cougars, are the start of the pro team.

Heaviest cod was a 20.6-pounder caught by Libda Anderson. Consolation prizes went to Ken Tourand, David Marr and Alma Cuery.

Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's chinook ladder derby is still topped by a 32.5-pounder landed by Mrs. Edith Williams.

But that lead isn't likely to stand up for long. A fresh run of chinooks arrived in Cowichan Bay this weekend and Carl Locatelli brought in a 30.13-pounder Tuesday morning, one of several big ones taken on the early morning bite by moochers off Separation Point and Antoine Bay.

Top prize in the ladder derby last week went to Duncan Attwell with a 28.12-pounder. Alan Laigaard was second with a 24.14-pounder and Hugh Reid took the hidden weight prize with a 15.14-pounder.

John V. B. Hawthorne, 645 Transit, was left off the Tyee Prince Button winners for June when the list appeared Tuesday. He caught a 30.8-pound tyee off Barnfield June 15.

Pub Has Right to Bar Anyone

"With all due respect, you don't look like 21," Magistrate William Ostler told a young man in Central Magistrate's Court Tuesday after finding him guilty of causing a disturbance.

"You may not like this remark now, but in 25 years you'll love it," he added with a smile.

William R. Webster, 21, of 955 Cook, was fined $25 after court was told he caused a disturbance when the proprietor of a local beer parlor refused to serve him.

A police officer testified Webster was removed from the premises when, in spite of several warnings, he insisted that he be served.

Webster told court he showed the proprietor a valid identification proving he was 21 years old.

But Magistrate Ostler pointed out any minor could use an identification card not belonging to him, and the proprietor of a drinking establishment had a great responsibility to make sure his clients were of age.

"He is liable to a substantial fine, so you can't blame him if he doesn't take any chances. It is his right to refuse service to anyone."

□

A 62-year-old man was fined $400 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Stewart E. Hill of 611 Goldstream said he couldn't quite recollect what had happened, but he admitted the charge.

"I was drunk, your honor," he said.

□

Gordon Grieve, 57, of 6448 Richardson, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance.

Court was told Grieve was staggering and falling to the ground repeatedly before police arrested him in the 1400 block Broad Monday night.

□

A 55-year-old man was sentenced to 20 days in jail after pleading guilty to begging in a public place.

Court was told Cecil Wallace had been convicted of vagrancy three times this year. He was arrested after police watched him approach several pedestrians asking them for money.

□

An 18-year-old Vancouver youth was remanded without plea until Aug. 5 on charges of possessing narcotics and driving without a licence.

Alfred M. Brill was remanded in custody on bail fixed at $5,000 and two sureties. Magistrate Ostler said bail was set high because Brill was already on bail following charges arising in Vancouver.

Loggers' Lunch Awaiting Cadets

A helicopter flight over Comox Glacier, lunch in a logers' dining hall, a reception at Government House in Victoria—these are some of the events planned for 21 air cadets from the U.K. and continental Europe who will arrive in Victoria Aug. 6.

The cadets are part of a contingent of 60 teenagers from different countries who will visit Canada this summer under the international air cadet exchange visits program sponsored by the Air Cadet League of Canada and the Canadian Armed Forces.

Twenty-five U.K. cadets and two each from Belgium, France and Switzerland will arrive in Vancouver on a Canadian Armed Forces aircraft Friday evening. They will be billeted at homes of air cadets in Richmond.

Entertainment in Vancouver includes a splash party and buffet at Capilano Winter Club in North Vancouver, a cruise aboard the Hon. Clarence Wallace's yatch Fifer, visits to the PNE and the aquarium in Stanley Park.

On Wednesday, Aug. 6, the group will come to Swartz Bay by ferry for a three-day visit to Vancouver Island.

RECEPTION PLANNED

At 11 a.m. the same day they will tour the Legislative Buildings and at 12:15 they will be luncheon guests of the provincial government at the Empress Hotel.

They will attend a reception at Government House in their honor at 3 p.m. the same day, will visit Butchart Gardens in the evening and will be billeted at CFB Esquimalt for the night.

On Aug. 7 they will take a bus for a visit to Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. and lunch in their loggers' dining hall. They will spend the next day at CFB Comox and HMCS Quadra, swimming and fishing after a helicopter flight over Comox Glacier.

They will leave for CFB Trenton, Ont., the morning of Aug. 9.

Town Officers Charged In Fire Wake

DAHLONEGA, Ga. (AP) — A wave of arson in this north Georgia community apparently results in part from a clash among the town's officials over who was going to run the town, state Comptroller-General James Bentley said Tuesday.

State investigators have charged the fire chief, city clerk and four former policemen with arson.

★ ★ ★

City Clerk Virginia Bruce, Fire Chief John Neal Porter, who also is a city councilman as well as superintendent of water, and former policeman Howard (Lee) Green have been arrested. All have been released on bond.

Warrants for Larry (Rex) Skinner, now a second-lieutenant in military police school at Fort Gordon, Ga.; Charles Duncan and William Anderson, all former policemen, have been issued, Bentley reported.

"There appears to have been some personality flap in that community among city officials," Bentley said

★ ★ ★

The comptroller-general, who also is the state's insurance commissioner and fire marshal, said the series of fires involve an elementary school, a fire at the city hall and four houses in March and April.

"The fire chief appears to have been the principal figure in this activity," he said.

The total damage in the residential fires was listed at less than $50,000.

★ ★ ★

Bentley said state investigators were sent to Dahlonega, a north Georgia mountain town of about 12,500, after an anonymous letter reached Gov. Lester Maddox.

Bentley said some of those charged had made statements and added: "According to the statements at least one burning was done for apparent spite to stop 'undesirable' individuals from moving in."

Stolen Goods Found, Two Held

Victoria police Tuesday said blankets, cameras, clothing and automotive tools valued at more than $2,000 were found in the rear of a car that was stopped for a routine spot check.

The goods had been stolen from six tourist cars from California, Alberta and B.C.

Meanwhile, two men appeared briefly in Central Magistrate's Court on charges of possessing stolen goods, Arthur H. Gillmor, 26, of 1121 Fort, and Gerald J. Lacusta, 22, of Kamloops, were remanded without plea until today.

Employment Up On West Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—The department of manpower and immigration says employment in June in British Columbia increased to 834,000 from 810,000 in May. All of the increase was in non-agricultural employment and there was a greater increase in male employment than in female employment.

Calgary Arrests 31

Raids Launched on Inside

CALGARY (CP) — Forty-four persons were arrested early Tuesday after RCMP and city police conducted a mass round-up in what they say will be one of the biggest drug raids in the city's history.

Warrants were issued for 83 persons in the co-orindated raids, but only 28 men and three women were arrested. Thirteen were held in custody.

The arrests resulted when two RCMP officers and a 23-year-old city police recruit, grew beards, dressed like hippies, and infiltrated into the city's drug community to gather first-hand evidence.

In magistrate's court, the arrested persons were charge with selling LSD and marijuana. All but one were released on $200 bail on each charge, to appear again Aug. 6.

Thomas Determan, about 22, of California, had bail set at $500 on a charge of selling LSD after court was told he was a U.S. draft dodger.

The raids were made on information gathered over the past 3½ months by the three undercover agents. Police said they seized an undisclosed amount of drugs and marijuana, plus at least three loaded firearms.

"The operation involved the use of undercover agents from the RCMP and Calgary city police who actually lived on the street with the hippie element in the city," Calgary police chief M. J. Kent said.

"The city police undercover agent was taken directly from the recruit class and underwent rigorous training and instruction. He was then injected into the hippie element shortly after the two RCMP agents were.

'Drug Experiments Take Inmate Toll'

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says hundreds of prisoners have been stricken with illness and an undetermined number have died as a result of drug and blood plasma experiments carried out in federal penitentiaries in the United States.

And the paper says the federal government "watched without interference" while the experiments were in progress.

The program was under direction of an Oklahoma-born physician named Austin R. Stough "and corporations in which he owns a substantial interest."

In his prison experiments, the paper says, "potentially fatal new compounds have been tested on prisoners with little or no direct medical observation of the results."

The Times says Stough declined to grant the paper an interview.

It says his prison experiments have led to his being forced out of prisons in Oklahoma and Arkansas and now is under orders to close down prison operations in Alabama.

Quebec Must Buy 50

Condition Blocks Plane Plant Deal

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial Industry Minister Jean-Paul Beaudry confirmed Tuesday that the Marcel Dassault aircraft company of France is negotiating the establishment of a factory in the province, but said a Dassault demand is holding up the deal.

He said Dassault wants Quebec to buy 50 of its planes before it will settle in the province, and added the only hope for the factory "rests in the company dropping its explicit condition . . . this is the only obstacle."

The factory would carry out the final assembly of parts for such Dassault aircraft as the Hirondelle and the Mystere. Company officials said a site had not been chosen, but reports said Dassault was considering Ste. Scholastique, site of the proposed new Montreal international airport.

Meanwhile, Michelin and Co., the tire giant in France, said it plans to establish two factories in Nova Scotia which will be ready for production by 1972.

The factories, near Bridgewater and in Pictou County, will make tires primarily for the Canadian market.

Treasure Hassle Produces Choking Attempt

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Texas land commissioner Jerry Sadler, 61, Tuesday grabbed a political foe by the neck and tried to choke him in front of a group of stunned legislators.

Members of Sadler's staff had to pull him away from Jake Johnson, 38, a Democratic legislator from San Antonio.

Sadler and Johnson have waged verbal battles the past month over ownership of sunken treasure found in Spanish galleons off the Texas coast.

★ ★ ★

Sadler contacted an Indiana salvage firm which recovered the treasure. The land commissioner agreed the firm could keep half of what if found. Johnson said the state should keep it all and pay the salvage firm a flat fee for digging up the artifacts.

Tuesday's scuffle took place in a hall outside the land commissioner's office near the state capital.

The treasure was inside Sadler's office being catalogued and appraised. Johnson showed up to look at it.

"Until the stuff is audited by the commission, there may be some people I don't want in there," Sadler said as Johnson came to the door. "Get out of here. I'm not going to let you in anywhere."

Johnson replied someone phoned him and asked him to come to the commissioner's office.

With that, Sadler leaped at Johnson and grabbed him by the neck. A radio broadcaster put a microphone in Sadler's face and asked him: "Mr. Sadler, are you trying to choke the representative?"

Sadler pushed the broadcaster away, and was then pushed away from Johnson by his own aides.

His face red with rage, Sadler turned and went back in to his office where gold and silver discs, cannon balls, crossbows and rare nautical instruments were on display.

Chaos in B.C. 'Like Britain' If NDP Winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Tuesday B.C. would suffer "10 times worse" under an NDP government than Britain has under Harold Wilson's Labor administration.

★ ★ ★

"It would be utter chaos for the province," said the premier, who arrived from Victoria to start mapping campaign plans with Social Credit strategists.

"Retail sales would drop, unemployment would be rampant and the working man would be the first to suffer if the NDP wins the election on Aug. 27."

He said the Labor Party and the NDP have a lot in common, foremost of which is that both parties "make all sorts of promises they can't keep."

Mr. Bennett said the Labor government has "been a disaster for the mother country, and an NDP government would be 10 times worse for B.C."

If Opposition Leader Tom Berger's New Democrats were elected, the province could anticipate "a 20 per cent drop in employment and 75 per cent drop in capital investments" as an immediate consequence, said the premier.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Bennett claimed Mr. Berger wants to nationalize "everything from the forest industry to the corner grocery store because the socialists believe in controlling the means of production."

"Mr. Berger has said himself he's a Marxian socialist, though he's trying to back away from it now. He scared everybody including himself."

★ ★ ★

Mr. Bennett also promised his government would guarantee the corporate sovereignty of B.C. Telephone for as long as Social Credit is in power.

"That's the answer, we won't take it over," said Mr. Bennett.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Bennett also lambasted the Liberals and leader Pat McGeer, and said the Aug. 27 election "is strictly a two horse race between Social Credit free enterprise and NDP state socialism.

★ ★ ★

"I say, if you're for state socialism vote for the NDP, if you're for free enterprise vote for Social Credit, but don't waste your vote on the Liberals.

★ ★ ★

"We want all the Liberal and Conservative votes in this election to ensure that this province doesn't take a sharp left turn and I think we're going to get most of them.'

The premier said he doubts if the Liberals will get 10 per cent of the popular vote this time and noted they got 20 per cent in the 1966 election.

Jet Used for Survey, Forest Inventory

Leased Lear for Pictures Only

By IAN STREET

The provincial government has leased another Lear jet—this one for a two-month period only to carry out high-speed aerial photographic missions in the far north of B.C.

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Tuesday the lease would cost between $60,000 and $72,000, depending on weather conditions, which govern the number of photographic missions possible in the two-month period.

The 600-mile-an-hour jet—the same type that was leased by former highways minister P. A. Gaglardi a couple of years ago—has been specially converted for aerial photography and carries no passengers.

* * *

After Mr. Gaglardi resigned his highways job in March, 1968, amid accusations that he had used the government jet to transport members of his family, Premier Bennet temporarily took over the portfolio and ordered immediate cancellation of the lease for the Lear.

Highways Minister Wesley Black subsequently drew up stringent new rules for passenger travel on government aircraft.

Mr. Williston said the second leased Lear jet is used by his department exclusively for aerial photography and forest inventory mapping. The government sells $100,000 worth of aerial photographs annually, but lack of airfields and the great distances to be covered have made it difficult so far to map the northwest area of the province.

* * *

Surveyor-general Bert Ralphs said the jet was leased from Vancouver businessman Marvin Judd. He predicted that with "seven or eight days" of clear weather in the far north during the coming month, the Lear would more than pay for itself in terms of new survey data gathered.

"That doesn't seem very much to us, living in Victoria," said Mr. Ralphs, "but the northwestern section of this province is where much of our weather starts. To do our photographic work, we must have clear conditions, without a cloud over a large area."

With the two aircraft owned and used by the government for aerial surveys, it has been impossible to cover a sufficient area of the north during the infrequent clear periods.

The aircraft, both Beechcraft Expeditors with a top speed of about 280 miles an hour and an effective cruising speed of approximately 150 miles an hour for photographic work, have a limited range of operations.

"When you have to go 700 or 800 miles to take photographs with these aircraft, you have to come home, even if a secondary airport like the one at Smithers is used for a refueling base, while the weather is still good," said Mr. Ralphs.

The Lear is based in Vancouver but remains on call for the provincial government throughout July and August. It hops over to Victoria to pick up the camera operator and detachment chief, both provincial government employees. The detachment chief is in charge of the photographic mission and the pilot, supplied by the plane's owner under the lease agreement, is responsible for the safety of the aircraft.

When the weather clears over the northern half of the province, an area of more than 150,000 square miles, the jet will likely be temporarily based in Smithers. Other airports which can be used for this purpose are at Prince George, Fort St. John and Fort Nelson.

During the past two weeks, clear conditions over the southern Interior have seen both Expeditors and the Lear on photographic missions. Mr. Ralphs said he was counting on the jet completing 100 hours on photographic missions throughout the province during the lease period.

The aircraft was specially modified with a pressurized door to accommodate the camera and drift sight used by the detachment chief.

Men Needed for Gatineau, Rainbow

Refits Boon to Dockyard

The busiest year in 15 years will begin when the destroyer-escort HMCS Gatineau enters HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, next month for a $3,300,000 refit, Commodore R. V. Henning, base commander, said Tuesday.

Commodore Henning said 300 to 400 tradesmen would be needed for the refit of the ship.

The Gatineau will be provided with variable-depth sonar, a rocket-assisted homing torpedo system and improved radar and electronic warfare equipment.

The refit is part of a $50,000,000 modernization program for four warships of her class. The first, the Terra Nova, has rejoined the Atlantic fleet after being refitted at Halifax dockyard.

Contracts for the other two vessels involved in the refit program, the Kootenay and the Restigouche, will be awarded after tenders have been called on a nationwide, commercial basis.

Work is to be carried out between May, 1970, and October, 1972.

Commodore Henning said Tuesday the Gatineau had already passed through the Panama Canal on its way here. It is due about mid-August, he said, and work will probably start by mid-September.

* * *

Planning is in progress for the job, the commodore said, and would entail hiring of ship repair tradesmen of almost every category.

Dockyard will also undertake the overhaul of the submarine Rainbow, he said, which will start about the same time.

The Gatineau refit will take about 15 months, he estimated, and the Rainbow job about eight months.

The commodore estimated the present work force at Dockyard at about 750.

Cox Rips Socred 'Inaction'

Oak Bay Liberal candidate Allan Cox lashed out at the government Tuesday night for its failure to meet the urgent need for new hospital beds and pollution controls in Greater Victoria.

He was elected by acclamation as the party's candidate in the Aug. 27 provincial general election, at a meeting attended by about 85 people in Oak Bay municipal hall.

Mr. Cox said the amount of money the Bennett government proposed to spend on construction of a skyscraper provincial office building in downtown Vancouver would pay for all the new hospital beds recommended for the capital region in the Agnew Peckham report.

The Liberal Party, the candidate added, favored construction of new hospital facilities throughout the province with money taken from general revenues.

A 10-per-cent increase in the present $250,000,000 annual expenditure for health, medical and hospital care in the province would cover the construction bill, said Mr. Cox.

"All our hospital construction needs could then be taken care of on a pay-as-you-go basis, without the uncertainty of property-owner referendums. It would mean an end to the continual friction between various levels of government, with everyone trying to flog the poor homeowner."

In fairness to hospital districts which had already incurred debts, he added, the provincial treasury should pay off the amount of just under $20,000,000 that is owing.

The "ridiculous and unrealistic" cost-sharing formula offered to local authorities by the provincial government wouldn't produce the beds that were urgently needed, Mr. Cox said.

"The job isn't being done, and it isn't going to be done as long as this government is in power."

Mr. Cox said the government launched what he called "Loffmark's phony war" against pollution during the Oak Bay byelection in which Mr. Cox was first elected to the legislature last July.

"There's nothing funny about the way the people of B.C., like the people of most of the world, are befouling their environment. It's a very serious matter and won't be solved by ministers of health who have obstructed the legitimate attempts of local government to improve the situation."

Mr. Cox added that controls over pollution must be "reasonably tough."

"It's pretty hard to find a happy medium. But industry and commerce have got to live. Enforcement is often the toughest part. It often makes you unpopular, which means losing votes, and that's why the present government doesn't do it."

He was joined by MPs David Groos and David Anderson in an apeal for support of Liberal candidates as middle-of-the-road free-enterprisers in a political climate where the major forces were polarizing into extreme right and left.

Mr. Anderson predicted that Liberals would win a minimum of three and possibly four of the five seats on the southern end of the Island.

Grit Stalwart Breaks Ranks

Long-time Liberal stalwart Geoffrey Edgelow has been appointed official agent for Social Credit candidate John Tisdalle for the campaign in Saanich and the Islands riding.

"Mr. Edgelow is a paid-up member of the Social Credit League now," Mr. Tisdalle said Tuesday night.

Mr. Edgelow is away on a business trip this week. A member of his family said the former Victoria alderman had already filmed an interview for campaign use, in which he described the Liberal party as "not much of a challenge," and said concern that the NDP might win the Aug. 27 election had led him to switch to the Socreds.

Premier Bennett, when he called the general election, said it would be a race between Social Credit and what he called the "Marxist" NDP.

Mr. Tisdalle also said Tuesday that his campaign headquarters had been opened at 3244 Douglas Street.

Diamonds and Furs

Long, Cool Summer For Teenage Queen

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Here's a summer job that should make every out-of-work student think twice: Miss Teenage Canada.

Holly Jewel McAvarry has the only job of that title in Canada, and she likes it. "It's very rewarding," she explained Tuesday night after arriving at Victoria International Airport.

Jewel is a 16-year-old Montreal high school student who more or less accidentally got the job of Miss Teenage Canada. She was doing the more mundane job of baby-sitting last winter when she heard on the radio that she had won out of 500 entries the Miss Teenage Montreal contest.

"I nearly dropped the baby," she recalled.

By April she had become Miss Teenage Canada, and though she doesn't yet know what the pay is she will probably make more than anyone else on the summer employment payrolls.

For a start, there's a diamond ring. And a fur coat, a $2,000 scholarship, and other gifts that come by way of endorsements. There's no effort on the part of Jewel or her "constant companion," Mrs. Carol Fotheringham, to hide the fact that this three-week tour of Canada is mainly a promotional venture.

* * *

Jewel explained that Mrs. Fotheringham refers to the tour as work. "Yes, I get paid . . . I'm not sure how much."

While Jewel's job came partly by chance, Mrs. Fotheringham is the public relations officer for MCP Talent Associates Ltd., "registered owners and operators of the Miss Teenage Canada Pageant."

The main part of the work is dropping in on hospitals and handicapped children's camps to talk with patients.

"A new face is always welcome," says Jewel. She has a fund of stories about sad and sickly faces that brighten when she enters the room.

* * *

Her itinerary for today lists visits to three hospitals (one is "optional . . . if unable to go, please call and advise"), visits with three radio stations, an interview with the mayor of Victoria and lunch with an advertising executive.

A nationally-known hamburger business is the main sponsor of this section of the tour, and the full sponsor of the first annual Miss Teenage Canada Pageant telecast.

* * *

Despite the heavy schedule of promotional work, Jewel says it's not all for the advertisers.

"I'm not only out to sell hamburgers and root beer." The other part of the mission, she says, is to "show people that teenagers are a good group."

She's giggly, like many 16-year-olds, and she has a boyfriend back in Montreal (but doesn't believe in going steady.)

Has she ever been in love?

"Oh, heck, no," said the charming young blonde. I wouldn't know what it felt like. I wouldn't know what it is."

Ferry Passengers

CPR Seeks Victims Of Exchange Error

Richard Stokes, the CPR's ferry agent in Victoria, wants to get in touch with ex-passengers who may have been over-charged aboard the Princess Marguerite.

Mr. Stokes said Tuesday it had been discovered that an inexperienced cashier recently applied the wrong formula in calculating the exchange rate on Canadian money spent aboard the ship.

It was reported in the Colonist last week that a Victoria woman had been charged a total of 31 cents for a 15-cent cup of coffee. The woman said she had been assessed 16 cents exchange on a $2 Canadian bill, and then given her change in Canadian money.

"The cashier made a mistake," said Mr. Stokes. "We believe it may have happened to at least five or six people, according to telephone calls I have received.

"She was a new girl, a summer replacement."

CPR policy aboard the Victoria-Seattle ferry is that all purchases must be paid for in U.S. funds.

Mr. Stokes said that when Canadian money is tendered, exchange should be charged only on the value of the goods purchased.

For example, he said, a cup of coffee paid for with a $1 Canadian bill should cost a total of 16 cents — 15 cents for the coffee, plus one cent exchange at the rate of 7½ per cent.

Change for Canadian money is given in Canadian funds, Mr. Stokes added.

'Time-Out' May Eliminate Strap

Isolation Held Best Corrective Method

By BILL STAVDAL

Child psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney said Tuesday that the isolation booth he proposes to use in a school research study with emotionally disturbed children holds promise of eliminating the strap.

The cubicle, termed a "time-out booth," is a feature of the $16,000 research program approved Monday for McTavish elementary school by the Saanich school board.

Trustees gave conditional approval to the project, but with reservations about the cubicle. At one point it was described by district superintendent Robert Price as being two feet wide by six feet long, though he later said size was immaterial.

* * *

In an interview Tuesday, Dr. Ney said, in effect, that isolating a child who is disrupting a class is better than strapping him.

In any case, said Dr. Ney, the time-out booth is only a minor aspect of his program and would only be used when a disturbed child attacked another pupil or the teacher.

Dr. Ney, 33, was raised in Nanaimo (he is a cousin of Nanaimo's Mayor Frank Ney) and began practice in Victoria a year ago.

* * *

He recently received a $16,000 grant from the national health and welfare department, and will have the co-operation of the provincial mental health branch in his study.

A staff of five will work with an estimated eight to 10 disturbed children at McTavish school, said Dr. Ney. There will be the regular teacher, himself working part-time, a part-time social worker, an observer and Vancouver psychologist Paul Nelson.

"The issue regarding a time-out cubicle has unfortunately clouded the real purpose of this project," said Dr. Ney in a prepared statement.

He said the smallest happenings in the classroom would be recorded second-by-second with the aid of a typewriter-like machine.

A raised hand, for example, would be noted by touching a single key, said Dr. Ney.

"In one hour we can have 3,600 bits of information," he said.

The psychiatrist said in his statement:

"The time-out cubicle has been likened to the isolation used by Communist Koreans but there is very little, if any, similarity."

* * *

The North Koreans shouted at and humiliated their prisoners, he recalled.

"Unfortunately, this shouting at children and humiliating them through embarrassment occurs too frequently in homes and classrooms.

"Research has shown that physical punishment among all the various kinds of punishment is probably the least effective. Not only that, it stimulates aggression in children and it teaches them that the way to solve interpersonal difficulties is through violence."

Dr. Ney described the time-out booth as "a very reasonable alternative, and our research may be able to demonstrate its effectiveness."

In an interview, Dr. Ney said:

"I predict it will be used here very extensively within five years."

Dr. Ney added that there could be no lock on the cubicle door because the fire marshal wouldn't allow it.

"Time-out is used every day in life, and on people of all ages," he stated.

* * *

"When you send a child to his room, that's time-out. When you ground a teenager, that's time-out.

"And when an adult has his driver's licence suspended for traffic infractions, that's time-out."

Dr. Ney said his project was begun with support and assistance of the special education division of the Greater Victoria school board.

"It should be noted that these special educators were enthusiastic about the project and still support it.

* * *

"Unfortunately, none of us was given an opportunity to provide Greater Victoria school board with the facts regarding all aspects of the project.

"At the last minute, it was turned down by the school board on a point they didn't really understand, nor were they willing to discuss and investigate."

Dr. Ney referred to his studies at five universities in three countries, and to his qualifications in medicine, psychiatry and psychology.

* * *

"I hope these students and parents of the students will have confidence in us," he said.

"I am quite confident that we will be able to remotivate children to learn, help solve their conflicts, improve their academic skills and help them control their own behavior in the classroom."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am expecting our first baby in about seven weeks. We waited a long time for this child and I want to do everything just right. Now a dark cloud is hovering over my shoulder.

My mother-in-law assumes I would be happy to have her move in for a few weeks and help with the baby when we come home from the hospital.

It's nice of her to offer but I don't want her. The thought of having my mother-in-law "in charge" is making a nervous wreck out of me. I don't consider getting up during the night a hardship. It will be a pleasure. I want to change my baby's diapers, give him his bottle, feed him and bathe him. This is the joy of being a new mother and I don't want to share it.

Is there anything I can say without hurting her feelings? Or for the sake of the relationship should I keep my mouth shut and let her come? Peoria.

Stand on Your Own

Dear Peoria: If you don't want your mother-in-law's help, say so. Allowing her to come will not improve the relationship, it will worsen it. Thank her and tell her you are eager to see how well you can do on your own. And perhaps you should add, "If I run into trouble, it's good to know I can call on you."

□

Dear Ann Landers: You often advise women who write about having their faces lifted, "Go ahead and do it if you want to." I'd like to give you another side of the story.

My grandmother had her face lifted eight months ago and it is ruining her life. She wasn't very pretty to begin with, but she had a fairly good figure and could afford expensive clothes. Grandpa died three years ago. Grandma got over her grief in record time and started to look for a man. She attracted mostly bums who were after her money. And old bums, at that.

A friend suggested that Grandma get her face lifted. She did it and now she is attracting young bums. Furthermore she is making a fool of herself acting like a spring chicken. My mother thinks maybe the surgeon's knife slipped and damaged her brain.

Better Other Way

So please don't encourage women to have their faces lifted. Everyone liked Grandma better the way she was. Sad Boy of 15.

Dear Boy: From your description of Grandma, I suspect she would have had trouble—even with her old face.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a divorcee with three lovely teenage children. A widower wants to marry me. He has two youngsters. They are nearly the same ages as my children.

Money is no problem. We get along fine—except for the kids. His are spoiled rotten, disobedient, poor students and they hate me. He dislikes my children because they are popular, fine students and they make his kids look bad by comparison. But we love each other and want a life together. I need your advice. A.A.

Dear A.: I see five reasons why you shouldn't marry this man. Your three and his two. Maybe when the children go away to school, but not now.

Shades of 1947

Hems Drop Like Bombs

PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint Laurent dropped hems like bombs Monday and they fell to eight, 10, 12 and 14 inches from the ground in styles that were sometimes reminiscent of Dior's "new look" of 1947.

The long look was most emphatic in Saint Laurent's tweed coats, cut like men's topcoats. They drop to midcalf. The skirts that shoot out from daytime tweed suits and battle jacket tops are even longer than midcalf — eight to 10 inches from the ground.

★ ★ ★

The long theme is carried out in printed wool topcoats cut like men's dressing gowns. Saint Laurent does this at least a dozen times in paisley and Persian carpet designs.

And the drop is brought into the English governess look as well: A fingertip-length suit jacket worn over a knee-length skirt. It goes with a LaCoste type shirt that has a buttoned front tab.

The same tab is found on jumpsuits and pajamas, many recalling the American astronauts' fatigue suits. They come in muted neutrals such as beige and grey, and also in black.

★ ★ ★

Another important trend for afternoon is the family album and Little Women look — mutton sleeves, waisted Basque jackets, calf-length full skirts and ruffled ruche necklines. In this category, there is also a Spanish feeling.

Black cloth suits are treated to passementerie touches, tabs and frogging on the front. The white silk shirt is frilled and the bolero is torero-inspired.

New Feminist Raps Pageants:

Soul Behind Genuine Beauty

TORONTO (CP) — Qualifications such as "excellence of soul" should be substituted for the "caste behind" in judging beauty pageants, a New Feminist says.

"Beauty contests are a potent piece of propaganda in the pressure against equal opportunities for women," says New Feminist Janet Lawler, "because they glamorize the type of woman who is content with a subordinate and superficial role—the living Barbie Doll."

The New Feminists, a group of about 20 Toronto women, was formed several months ago to press for equality for women, both in the home and on the job. Group spokesmen say they are against motherhood and favor day-care centres which would enable mothers to have careers of their own.

The comments about beauty pageants came in a letter to the editor published in The Star saying the New Feminists "take strong exception" to continuation of the Miss Toronto Pageant as part of the Metro Toronto Police Association's annual field day.

"Have you ever heard of a beauty contest winner who won because of her excellence of soul, her rare intelligence, her emotional maturity, her compassion, her fairness of mind?" the New Feminist asked.

"She won because it was thought she had a cute behind and because she demonstrated talent in some important field of the arts such as baton twirling or tap dancing."

Judy Welch, a former Miss Toronto who owns a modelling agency, said the New Feminist member "obviously doesn't know what she is talking about."

"I work with these girls and they're young, natural teenagers who are interested in gaining poise, good grooming and confidence." The reaction from the 1937 Miss Toronto, Mrs. Harold Maeda, was:

"What a vulgar thing for any woman to suggest. Doesn't she have anything better to do than to write such ridiculous nonsense?"

California Bill

Reform Nears For Divorce

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

SACRAMENTO — The first major California divorce reform bill in almost a century has been sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk by the legislature for his expected signature into law.

Aimed at preventing fights between husbands and wives with adverse effects on the children when a marriage breaks up, the bill is the result of a three-year study and is to become effective Jan. 1, 1970.

★ ★ ★

The bill would eliminate the traditional grounds of mental cruelty, adultery, desertion, neglect, habitual drunkenness and conviction of a felony to get a divorce.

It would substitute only two grounds — "irreconcilable differences" and incurable insanity to obtain a "dissolution of marriage," which would replace divorce.

The courts would have to divide community property as equally as possible between the two marriage partners. However, the judge would consider the ability of the wife to work and the duration of the marriage in awarding alimony.

★ ★ ★

The waiting period for a final decree would be cut from one year to six months as would the residency requirements for filing for a dissolution of marriage. There would be no major change in the matter of child custody.

Telegrams from Leaders Laud 50th Anniversary

Prime Minister Trudeau, Governor General Roland Michener and NDP leader T. C. Douglas sent three of the many congratulatory messages Mr. and Mrs. John Steed of Parksville received on their 50th anniversary July 21.

Born in Great Britain, she in Sowerby Bridge and he in Glasgow, the Steeds met at Halifax, Yorkshire, while Mr. Steed was convalescing from wounds received at Epernay, on active duty with the famous Gordon Highlanders.

They were married at Christ Church, Sowerby Bridge, on July 21, 1919. In 1948 they came to Canada, lived in Calgary for 17 years before moving to Parksville four years ago.

In honor of their anniversary, the Steeds held an open house at their home. Two daughters, Mrs. Jack Parnell of Hornby Island and Mrs. Robert Arthurs of Port Alberni, attended. A third daughter, Mrs. Richard Ryland, lives in Northumberland, England. Also in attendance were Mrs. Steed's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Charity of Summerland, B.C., and many friends and neighbors.

The Steeds have 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Trim Waist Aids Hips

By MARY SUE MILLER

It is said that the waistline is the barometer of the figure, predicting fair or foul conditions. At the moment, there seems to be signs of trouble ahead. Notches in belts are being loosened. And just a flurry of weight around the waist portends a deluge to come on the hips.

If you are wriggling into waistlines of your clothes, it's time to get with a few reducing routines. Now, milady, no objections. The procedure is neither too hot nor too hard. See for yourself.

★ ★ ★

Sit on the floor and cross your legs tailor-fashion. By bending in your waist, place the fingertips of both hands on the floor, as far out from your right hip as possible.

Now swing your arms upward and to the left, until your fingertips touch the floor on the left side. Continue without stopping for 30 counts. Work hard for increased reach and pull in the waist muscles. Also try for more speed, rhythm and grace.

Stand with your back pressed to a wall. Pull in your abdomen, pull up in your waist — hold for 10 slow counts. Relax and repeat seven times each, morning and night.

Try to carry over the pull-in, pull-up idea to your posture. Both your standing and sitting posture. Do it and your figure's barometer doesn't stand a chance to play foul. Not, of course, unless you're eating as much as you're laying.

British Losing Yen for Beef

LONDON (UPI)—Roast beef on an Englishman's dinner plate is losing its popularity, a ministry of agriculture survey said. Chicken, bacon and pork chops are more popular and consumption of potatoes rose in four years to 233½ pounds a year.

Victorians:

Students Go Swedish

Victorian Lyn Evans is going Swedish next year.

Lyn and six other Victoria students are part of a Rotary exchange plan which will give students a chance to get to know the languages and customs of another country. The students will leave Sunday for a year as the adopted children of Swedish parents.

★ ★ ★

They will take a two-week crash course in Swedish before moving in with the first of three Swedish families who have agreed to adopt them temporarily.

From their Swedish homes, the girls will be going to a regular Swedish school for a year. Lyn thinks the Swedish schooling will ensure that they become fluent in the language — they'll have to learn Swedish to survive the year.

Small Boy Penned Under Desert Sun

BLYTHE, Calif. (AP) — Little Tony is recovering after police rescued him from a hippie commune, where officers said he was chained inside a roofless box for weeks under the desert sun.

Police said Tuesday the youngster, six-year-old Anthony Gibbons, may have been locked inside the home-made prison for two months.

The site, gritty with sand and sagebrush, is in the southern Mojave Desert.

Sheriff's Capt. Robert Bickmore said the temperature hit 110 degrees during 17 of the 56 days the boy is believed to have spent in what he described as a wooden, "filthy box."

* * *

Officers say they found the lad, "pale and visibly underweight" and suffering from dehydration, shackled inside the box, which was about six feet long by six feet wide by six feet high.

No trace of food or water was found. The boy told officers he was being punished because he had played with matches and set fire to one of the wooden ramshackle houses that deputies say were built by young persons from the Los Angeles area.

Deputies arrested eight persons including two women, whose ages ranged from 21 to 26. They were arraigned on charges of abusing the health of a child. Conviction could result in up to 10 years in prison.

Officers said they believed the boy's unidentified parents were separated and that they had given the lad to the commune youths for keeping.

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — An exotic dancer lost part of her act—a six-foot boa constrictor—because the reptile bit her five times on the upper chest and breasts during a performance.

'Potential Bombs'

Bottles Termed Home Hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. government investigator Tuesday identified the glass bottle, especially ones containing soda pop, as the most dangerous item in the household — 10 times more dangerous than power lawn mowers.

"Each defective bottle," testified Larry Schott, "is a potential bomb which can severely and permanently injure innocent persons."

Schott, chief investigator for the National Commission on Product Safety, told a public hearing of the commission that of the 263 household items within the commission's jurisdiction, "the glass bottle was the single product most frequently reported" as the cause of accidents by insurance companies.

Schott testified that in a recent three-month sample of 2,390 insurance company liability cases, 17 per cent involved bottles. "Glass bottles outnumbered power lawn mowers, a commonly recognized hazard, by more than 10 to one," Schott said.

Testifying that pop bottles were especially dangerous, Schott said that when a pressurized glass bottle fails, "the internal glass pressure explodes the glass into many razor sharp fragments."

He said the same principles applied to bottled beer, but that the investigation concentrated on "carbonated beverages because they develop approximately twice the internal pressure of bottles of beer." Edwin Dodd, president of Owens-Illinois Inc., denied that bottles posed any serious hazard.

Allowance Aids Job-Seekers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians who must leave home to seek employment will benefit after Sept. 1 from a new $20-a-week living allowance announced Tuesday by the federal manpower department.

An amendment to the man power mobility regulations will allow payment of a living allowance of $20 weekly for unemployed and underemployed workers already in receipt of "exploratory grants" helping them to find new work away from their home areas.

The worker's living allowance will be paid in addition to present two-way travel allowances and family living allowances of up to $40 a week based on the numbers of dependents. The exploratory grants cover a job-research period of up to four weeks.

Gaspe Resort Up in Arms

Hosed Hippies Cling to Barn

PERCE, Que. (CP) — Despite unwelcome weekly "showers," three dozen hippies returned Tuesday to occupy a barn near the waterfront in this resort town on the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

The hippies have been flushed out of the building twice with fire hoses after irate local residents complained that they were keeping people awake at nights and frightening away tourists.

The latest hosing occurred Monday night at the hands of about 40 townspeople who had been deputized to reinforce the town's regular two-man police force.

* * *

Shouting angrily, they squirted away with four hoses and drove out the unwelcome visitors, who were escorted by provincial police to Chandler, another coastal town 28 miles away.

The hippies spent the night in the Chandler town hall but returned Tuesday, some of them still damp, and said they will stay in the barn until local police get a warrant to evict them.

A week earlier, Perce volunteer firemen gave the hippies a similar hosing after they refused to stop operating the barn as a coffee house with live entertainment.

The hippies first arrived early in July and installed themselves in the barn.

After the hippies were flushed out a second time, some temporary local constables began smashing objects left inside the barn.

Judge Joseph Duguay of Sessions Court, on the scene at the time, told them to stop it and they did.

Local businessmen say the hippies are scaring away tourists, a major source of revenue in the town.

"It's not because they have beards that we don't like them," said Gilles Jean, owner of the Aux Lanternes pool room. "It's because they insult tourists, bring in dope and are trying to ruin our business."

Scandinavians Snap Up Paper Panties by Scots

GLASGOW (UPI) — The popularity of paper panties among Scandinavian girls means employment for 500 more workers in Scotland, a paper clothing firm said Tuesday.

Goujon (Paper Togs) Ltd. said it plans to double its present factory space and increase its labor force to 900 within a year.

A company spokesman said "most of our export goods go to Scandinavia." The firm plans to hike production from 1,000,000 pairs a week to 2,000,000 he said.

Inquest Jury Told:

Stopped by 'Thud'

"I heard a thud, a yell and stopped the car," driver Derk Jan Albers told a coroner's jury Tuesday night.

The jury was inquiring into the death of Gregory Taylor, 14, who was hit while walking along Goldstream Avenue July 14. He died July 19. Mr. Albers was driving home from the Goldstream Inn.

The jury was told he had consumed seven glasses of beer between noon and about 7 p.m. Between two sessions in the inn he left and had a ham sandwich and coffee at the Goldstream Dinette.

While in the dinette he struck up an acquaintance with a young couple and all three had returned to the inn.

* * *

Dinette manageress Dorothy Newcomb said the three returned from the inn and had a deluxe hamburger each and coffee. She said the young man and Mr. Albers danced with the young lady.

Mr. Albers said he stopped the car when he heard the thud and jumped out.

Mr. Albers said he had been going 20 and 25 miles an hour when first spotted the boys. He said the boy who was hit appeared to be in the middle of the road on the crown but started moving sideways as he approached.

Evidence was heard from seven witnesses including Mr. Albers. Dermod Owen-Flood representing the youth's family had just completed cross examination of Mr. Albers at adjournment.

The inquest resumes Friday.

More Days In Hospital For Skillings

Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings was readmitted Saturday to Royal Jubilee Hospital with hemorrhaging of an internal injury he received in a fall July 5.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Jubilee administrator, reported Mr. Skillings in "very satisfactory" condition, but said he would probably have to remain under observation for another seven to 10 days.

* * *

Mr. Skillings was originally injured when he fell on some stairs in the Union Club. He was released from treatment last Tuesday and re-entered hospital Saturday. The minister was temporarily released from hospital July 15 when he was renominated to run for the Victoria seat in the Aug. 27 election.

UVic Head Speaks On Friday

Dr. Bruce Partridge, the University of Victoria's new president, will give his first public address Friday during a two-day symposium titled The Learning Society.

Dr. Partridge is expected to speak on university affairs and the relationship of the campus to the larger community.

The symposium is being organized by the student Alma Mater Society, and is aimed at examining the teaching roles of five institutions: family, school, work experience, public institutions and the news media.

Panelists for five discussion groups have been drawn from all over Greater Victoria.

The debates, in which the public will be invited to take part, will examine the assumed and the real teaching roles of the five social areas.

The symposium begins at 2 p.m. Friday in the university commons block.

Tickets are available at the UVic student Union Building and the Craigdarroch College office.

Leader Coming To NDP Picnic

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas will be guest speaker at a party Aug. 17 at Sea Bluff Farm on Witty's Lagoon Road, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Mitchell.

The public has been invited to the picnic, from noon to 5 p.m. A salmon barbeque will be held from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Sea Otters Lifted To Island Today

A group of about 30 Alaskan sea otters is expected to be airlifted to northwestern Vancouver Island today.

The airlift is part of an international co-operative program aimed at re-establishing the sea otter along the B.C. and Washington coast.

The animal has been practically extict here since the 19th century, when it was hunted for its fine fur.

* * *

Plans were announced recently for a joint U.S.-Canadian airlift of more than 60 sea otters from Amchitka Island, where the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission plans atomic test blasts.

The airlift was delayed nearly a week by bad weather. On Tuesday a spokesman for the B.C. Fish and Wildlife branch said the operation would be carried out today.

The entire group of otters will come via airliner to Hoquiam on Washington state's Pacific coast. Then about 30 will be trans-shipped to a Canadian Forces Dakota aircraft and lifted to Port Hardy.

From there, said the Fish and Wildlife spokesman, the animals will be taken by Canadian Forces helicopter to their new home on the Bunsby Islands, 220 miles northwest of Victoria on the west coast.

The official said it was necessary to trans-ship the otters quickly, because they were unable to live in confinement for long.

"This has been a long-time dream of conservationists," the spokesman said.

BRUCE LOWTHER
AbouTV

There's still hope for good viewing — one of the great names of TV's golden age is coming back. Paddy Chayefsky, author of Marty, has signed the CBS to produce a weekly series beginning in the 1970-71 season, and he'll write many of the scripts. The basic idea is two "little men" against big government and the like, with guest stars each week.

□

Show business remains the craziest of all. Sir William Walton, one of England's few great composers, wrote a score for the movie Battle of Britain. The producing company, United Artists, junked it for one by a nobody named Ronald Goodwin, because Walton's score was deemed "insufficient for album treatment as part of collateral merchandising."

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Tuesday's transmissing answer — Way back in Canadian history, the Rivard affair of 1964-65 centred on an alleged offer of $10,000 concerning bail for Lucien Rivard. The offer was said to have been made by lawyer Raymond Denis to lawyer Pierre Lamontagne. Wonder where they are now?

Today's question — Tommy Douglas asked the first question in Parliament about the Rivard affair but a Tory MP did most of the attacking. Give his name, party and riding, and, while you're at it, identify his film-star brother. Answers Thursday.

"And now, slowing our program to a walk . . ."

"There must be about 120 ways of doing potatoes and there are all sorts of chips—long ones, little ones, round ones and so on. You can take it that the royal family do have chips."

Alderman's Request

Pollution Controls Described by Firm

B.C. Forest Products says it has already taken a number of steps to minimize air, water and noise pollution.

A letter to Ald. Cecil Parrott, who had requested full details of the total B.C. Forest Products anti-pollution program, said, "Perhaps what we haven't done is to properly inform the public in Victoria as to what has and what is being accomplished."

The company listed five steps in an air pollution control program ranging from the hiring of smoke control consultants to close-circuit television.

STACKS TELEVISED

The camera televises the smoke stacks to ensure that the company operates within the Victoria smoke bylaw.

Repeated in the letter was the statement that "almost half of what one sees coming from the stacks is water vapor."

Research to find new economic ways of using lower-grade waste material is continuing, the company said.

Four methods of controlling water pollution listed by the company are: log booms to control floating debris, the removal of debris, a continuing harbor clean up program, and installation of a $250,000 dry barker to eliminate discharge of foam and discolored water.

The letter said mufflers had been added to air cylinder exhausts, signal lights and electric buzzers had replaced air horns, and buildings had been enclosed to minimize noise near large mills.

Ald. Parrott said that, although much remained to be done, he was satisfied the company was making a strenuous effort to eliminate pollution.

Bridge

Winners in a weekly duplicate bridge game conducted by the Victoria unit of the American Contract Bridge League is tie: Dessa and Fraser McColl, Barrie and Harold Turnham, 3, Ronald Smith and Brian Larkey, 4, Michael O'Brien and Byron Price, 5, Patricia and John Bishop, 6, Laura Tingley and Freda Small.

Red Writer Vanishes

LONDON (AP) — Soviet writer Anatoli Kuznetsov, well known in Russia as a liberal and recently attacked by Communist hardliners, was reported missing Tuesday by the Soviet embassy in London.

A foreign office spokesman said British officials were in touch with the Soviets on the matter. The manager of a hotel in South London where Kuznetsov had taken a room said the writer returned to the hotel Monday night, then disappeared. His baggage was still in the room.

Kuznetsov, 40, was bitterly attacked early this month by a Soviet paper for his new novel Fire in which the paper said he portrayed Soviet workers as "cynics, scoundrels, self-seekers and alcoholics."

Leave Leaves

Last spring when we were discussing the planting of gladiolus, I gave it as my opinion that this is one of the easiest of all flowers for the novice gardener to grow. Even with this easy doer, though, there are a few little problems that arise, and one of them is just how much stem to take when the spikes of bloom are cut.

In this, our gardening beginner is rather between the devil and the deep blue sea. He needs a good long stem in order to evoke those oohs and aahs of admiration from the Little Woman and the envious neighbors, for a short-stemmed gladiolus spike looks stubby and all out of proportion.

* * *

But to get a long stem, he has to cut down to a point where some of the leaves are sacrificed, and as I have pointed out many times before, the leaves are food factories and are needed after flowering to plump up the new bulb for next year's flowers. If any leaves are cut away when taking the spike, next year's blooms may suffer.

Fortunately, there is a trick of the trade whereby a long-stemmed spike of bloom can be cut without the loss of any foliage. It is a neat trick, and one well worth mastering.

First, take a good long look at the fan of leaves and note how one leaf slants off to the left and the next one to the right. Count upward from the bottom and locate the point where the fourth and fifth leaves cross over. If you feel this point with your finger and thumb, you can detect the swelling of the flower stem within.

* * *

Now open the smallest blade on your pocket knife, thrust the point of it through the fan of leaves at this point and make a tiny horizontal slit, only about half an inch long. The idea here is to sever the stem of the flower spike within the sheath of leaves with the smallest possible cut.

Next, grasp the flower spike and twist it, first one way and then the other, and you will feel it break off deep down within the sheath of foliage. Lift it out of its socket, and there you have a beautiful long-stemmed spike without the loss of a single leaf.

Speaking of glads, I have had a lot of complaints this year of bent, twisted and distorted spikes. One common cause of this is over-feeding, for if you push glads along too fast with overdoses of nitrogenous fertilizer, growth is soft and sappy with a pronounced tendency to distortion.

Another and even more common cause is too much variation in soil moisture — soil which is too dry one day and too wet the next. The gladiolus plant is a hound for water, as I explained last spring, and the moment the roots get really thirsty, the spike starts to droop like a tall wax candle in a hot room. When soil moisture is restored, the flower spike tries to straighten itself as it becomes turgid, but it seldom succeeds entirely and is left with a permanent kink.

* * *

Actually, you needn't push the panic button just because the stems of your pet glads are kinked or crooked. It is true that such spikes will never win you any prizes at the flower shows — straight spikes are a must for exhibiting — but if you have anyone in your family with a flair for floral arrangements, she can make a far more interesting and artistic creation with bent or curved spikes of bloom than with those which are as stiff and straight as ramrods.

Bless Our Missiles

"Please, tell me again, Gramps, what are those big things in the holes out beyond the forest?"

Those are our missiles, honey. They protect us from The Enemy."

"But the missiles are all rusty, Gramps, and the holes are filled with rain water."

"Don't you worry none, honey. If The Enemy attacks our cities, they will soar up into the sky and explode like the setting sun."

* * *

"Oh, how beautiful! What's a city, Gramps?"

"Well, now, honey, a city's a great big place where thousands of people live in buildings maybe even a hundred foot high. We had dozens of cities before The Time of the Troubles."

"A thousand people all in one place. My! Where did all the cities go, Gramps?"

"Most of them got burned down during The Time of the Troubles. The poor folks burned them down because they were hungry."

"But everybody's always hungry, Gramps."

"Not then, honey. Back then, most folks had more than they could eat. And more clothes than they could wear and bigger houses than they rightly use."

"Then why didn't they give more things to the poor people so they wouldn't burn down the cities, Gramps?"

* * *

"But that's silly, Gramps. You can't eat missiles."

"Don't be blasphemous, girl. You're too young to understand. We had to build missiles to protect us from The Enemy. You see, The Enemy aimed to destroy our way of life."

"But the poor people . . ."

"Our missiles protected the poor folks just as well as the rich folks, fair as fair can be. And protection comes first. Now is sure doesn't make much sense to feed a hungry man only to let The Enemy destroy him, does it?"

* * *

"Well, no, I guess not, but . . ."

"First things first, honey. So we built hundreds and hundreds of missiles. You can still see them all over the countryside. And we said, 'Now The Enemy will never dare destroy our cities.' And we were right. They never did. There, now, I think this here rat's done."

"You sure speared us a fat one, Gramps."

"Now that you understand about The Missiles, honey, maybe you'd like to say the blessing. Think you can?"

"Oh, yes, Gramps. Blessed be our almighty missiles. May they protect us from The Enemy forever and ever. Amen."

"That was just fine, honey. Now you go on into the cave and catch a little shut-eye. I'll stand first watch tonight."

"Yes, Gramps. But tell me first, who's The Enemy?"

* * *

"Well, now, honey, I don't rightly remember that. But don't you fret. As long as we have our missiles, we'll be safe."

"Oh, Gramps. I'm scared. They just don't look like they'd work."

"Hush, now, honey. Some things you just got to accept on faith."

His Lips Sealed

LONDON (NANA) — A reporter is paid to reveal the facts. A secretary or press agent is paid to suppress the facts, or at the very least to be discreet. Recently Howard Strickling, head of publicity at MGM in Hollywood for almost half a century — he has now retired — told me he had been offered enormous sums to write the truth about the stars he had taken care of through the years — Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Robert Montgomery, Garbo, Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer — the list is long.

* * *

"Of course," Howard assured me, "I would never do this. It would be a betrayal of the trust they placed in me." Oh, there have been so many stories of stars who had parented little bastards. Even a murder. The MGM wall of silence protected them all. Had judges been corrupted? Had marriages been arranged in a frantic rush? Had stars been child-deformed and whisked out of jail cells? We'll never really know, because men like Strickling will never tell.

* * *

I remember the anguish of Ava Gardner when a trusted friend of hers worked as her assistant, press agent and confidante, and decided to reveal everything he knew about his one-time employer. Reading it all in the Sunday newspapers in England, I thought this isn't cricket. He was in essence a double agent. He had taken the money from Ava and he was selling his information to the enemy, the press.

This is one reason why Ava is so mistrustful of anyone who asks her a direct question — unless she knows them very, very well. When she was in New York to publicize The Night of the Iguana, she was besieged with requests for interviews. She said "no" to everyone.

* * *

Objective writing is necessary about presidents and kings for history to judge them. Historians are not in the same category as press agents and secretaries, or butlers and cooks — the British royal family has a signed contract with each employee that he or she cannot write about what they see from the view from below stairs, which isn't always the true view.

* * *

Well, like I said, a reporter is paid to reveal the facts. But why all this continual hammering at Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. Her marriage seems to have created open season to attack her wherever she is most vulnerable. The newest book, by her one-time private secretary, seems to me a betrayal of trust. I read somewhere, she was peeved because Jackie had bawled her out in front of people. Why didn't she resign on the spot instead of waiting until the whole pack was crowding in for the kill, to spill her prison for personal profit. I could believe her disclaimers if she were to give all the royalties to charity.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Technology a Threat

In the flood of last month's convocation and commencement addresses — to which I contributed my own full measure of pompous generalities — there was only one talk I ran across that deserves more than passing attention. This was a convocation speech at St. Albans School in Washington by the articulate and abrasive Vice-Admiral Hyman G. Rickover.

According to a report in the New York Times, Rickover expressed concern "by the ease with which purveyors of technology have pressured the general public into letting 'so-called' progress' alter their lives."

What he meant, the admiral explained, was that "much harm has been done to man and nature because technologies had been used with no thought for the possible consequences."

This is an unpopular position I have been taking in the column for some 20 years now, and I am delighted to find reinforcements from such formidable quarters.

* * *

The key word to the future, Rickover said in effect, is "ecology." The ecology of our planet demands that we become more familiar with the balance of nature before we continue tampering with forces that may spin out of control and have consequences too fatal to rectify.

We are currently so infatuated with all the "miracle" toys of our technology that we have scarcely stopped to assess their negative aspects.

By something more than a coincidence, I have also been reading at the same time a new book, Technological Man, by Victor Ferkiss, which is the best, latest and most comprehensive study of the vast changes not only in man's relation to the world, but in his relation to his own nature.

Ferkiss, like Rickover and Barry Commoner, and a few other serious viewers of our technological age, is worried that since all the new scientific issues are beyond the comprehension of the ordinary citizen, we may simply sit back and allow the technological element, rather than the human element to become the central and determining factor in society.

Technology, of course, is a means, and not an end; but it tends to become an end unto itself if not checked by humanistic values — like an elevator that keeps stopping and starting on a timer, regardless of the specific needs of the people who ride it every day, so that the people rearrange their time for the elevator, instead of the elevator serving their schedule.

* * *

In the final chapter of his illuminating but frightening book, Ferkiss suggests that if our technological genius cannot create a genuine "world society" wherein man and his environment are in balance, then this infinite possibility for good might easily turn into an infinite possibility for evil. The time to think it out is now, not later.

Union to Vote on New Deal, Says Firm

B.C. Tel Yields, Hikes Pay Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A breakthrough in negotiations between the B.C. Telephone Co. and representatives of 6,600 striking employees came late Tuesday night when the company increased its previous wage stand of a 17 per cent increase over two years to 19.8 per cent.

In a statement issued after the talks, begun Friday with the aid of federal conciliation officer Don Tysoe, the company said it had offered "an across-the-board wage increase of 19.8 per cent, a reduced work week for plant employees which would raise their hourly rates by 27.9 per cent, and a variety of additional improvements."

● Mackasey "fishing trip" to head off dock strike? Page 2

The statement said negotiators of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. would submit the proposals to their membership for voting. Union officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

"We believe the employees will give most serious consideration to the company's offer and we hope they will accept them so this strike can be ended," the company statement said.

B.C. Tel had previously remained adamant on the 17 per cent increase, contained in a conciliation board report which the federation rejected. The federation demanded a 32 per cent increase and struck June 23.

About 1,500 supervisory employees have maintained long distance service and kept up with repairs but lagged in installing new telephones. Numerous incidents of vandalism to telephone cables have also marked the five-week strike.

Third picture sent shows Mars' south-polar cap

● Mars roadmap for two Mariners. Page 25

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) —Mariner 6 sent 32⅔ pictures across 58,000,000 miles of space Tuesday night—some with new information—as it hurtled toward a close flyby of the mysterious red planet Mars.

Most were fuzzy and indistinct but scientists said the later photos in the series showed these hitherto unknown features: the south polar ice cap has ragged edges, and it has a strange dark patch in its centre.

The early pictures were likened by one observer to burry views of a dirty marshmallow.

QUALITY IMPROVES

But quality improved and the ragged edge showed up on frame 20. A spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory commented later: "Perhaps the most exciting result is that some pictures show a ragged edge of the southern polar cap, possibly caused by the presence of mountains or craters. This is new information."

The cap's dark spot showed on Frame 30. The spokesman said this had not been seen before, and no information was available on its nature. Another feature of final shots was that

Nixons Away to Vietnam In Secrecy-Clouded Trip

BANGKOK (AP) — President Nixon took off early today from Thailand for a secrecy-cloaked one-day trip to Vietnam. Although the travelling White House refused to announce his destination, it was known to be somewhere in the Saigon area. Mrs. Nixon accompanied her husband on the flight.

Reliable sources indicated Nixon would visit one base around Saigon during his stay and make a speech to American troops.

The sources reported that Nixon would lunch with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at the Independence Palace in downtown Saigon as a dramatic show of confidence in the security of the capital.

● Nixon mission expresses support for Thieu. Page 3

The president and Mrs. Nixon took a helicopter from the grand palace in Bangkok to the airport, 15 miles from town.

* * *

He was accompanied by the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams, and by the U.S. Ambassador to Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker and Mrs. Bunker, who is Ambassador Carol Laise, the U.S. envoy to Nepal.

Nixon will return to Bangkok tonight to wind up his three-day stay in Thailand.

* * *

Shortly after Nixon left Bangkok, a communications blackout was imposed in Saigon on out-going news dispatches. It was believed that the blackout would continue until the president was on his way back to Thailand.

The suddenness and the security-dictated secrecy of Nixon's Vietnam travel arrangements were reminiscent of former president Lyndon Johnson's two brief visits while he was on Asian trips.

Johnson flew into Cam Ranh Bay, a big, relatively secure U.S. base some 180 miles northeast of Saigon in

Movie takes world to eery lunar landing

HOUSTON (AP) — It opens like a science-fiction thriller, silent and eerie and shadowy, without sound effects but loaded with high drama.

A tiny spaceship. Two astronauts, alone but not visible. A foreign, mysterious, cratered planet glowing out a window.

* * *

This is the prelude to man's first moon landing, the filmed approach to the lunar surface July 20 of Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

Through vivid color photography, the Apollo explorers took American television viewers aboard their spaceship Eagle and ferried them Tuesday to a perilous landing on the lunar surface.

* * *

This was the first movie footage of the Apollo 11 adventure released by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration after elaborate, complex and delicate decontamination and processing procedures.

The film was accompanied by four color photographs showing footprints, a silhouette of the spidery moonship and a tan, beachlike lunar surface with the American flag unfurled above it.

● Sterile mice set for shots of moon dust. Page 3

But the 16-millimetre movie film was the highlight.

The space drama opened as Armstrong and Aldrin guided Eagle along the southwestern edge of the landing zone in the Sea of Tranquillity.

As the spaceship descended to its historic rendezvous, viewers could see the olive-colored, cratered lunar surface shining through Aldrin's right-hand window.

They could watch as the

Czechs Hurl Rocks At Soviet Visitors

PRAGUE (AP)—Angry workers stoned a Soviet Communist party delegation arriving to visit a factory outside of Prague Tuesday, Czechoslovak informants said.

The Moscow Municipal Communist party delegation headed by Victor V. Grishine, deputy member of the Soviet party Politburo, left without entering the Avia light plane and airplane parts plant north of the capital, the sources said. No injuries were reported. There was no official confirmation of the incident.

Czechoslovak eyewitnesses said several hundred workers were outside the Avia factory as the Russians arrived. The visitors assumed it was to welcome them but they quickly returned to their cars when the welcome turned out to be jeers and rocks, the sources said.

From Avia, the Soviet delegation went to the sprawling CKD industrial works in the northwest of Prague, where workers have withheld union dues and held stop-work meetings to protest pro-Soviet policies of Communist party leader Gustav Husak.

At the CKD Locomotive Works, sources said, virtually all the Czechoslovak workers managed to be away from their machines and the Russians passed through an almost deserted factory.

Own Brassiere Fetters Disguised Hijack Man

MANAGUA (Reuters) — A would-be hijacker disguised as a woman was overpowered Tuesday by the pilot of a Nicaraguan airliner and tied up with his own brassiere and strips from his miniskirt.

The 26-year-old Nicaraguan was also wearing an elastic girdle.

The C-46 NICA airliner, on a flight to the city of Bluefields on the Atlantic coast with 42 persons aboard, returned here and the man was handed over to police.

He was identified as Carlos Jose Guadamuz, a member of the clandestine Sandinista National Liberation Army who had been believed to be be in Czechoslovakia.

Guadamuz, wearing a wig and dressed in a yellow miniskirt, boarded the plane under the name of Maria Terese Lainez.

El Salvador Pulling Out Of Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador backed down under pressure from the Organization of American States Tuesday and announced its intention to withdraw its troops from Honduran soil occupied in a recent armed conflict.

El Salvador yielded after the OAS had agreed to apply stiff economic sanctions unless the Salvadorean government removed the troops.

More Volts For North Next Year

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority said Friday it will link northern Vancouver Island into its power grid for the first time late next year with a new, $6,000,000 transmission line.

The 138,000-volt line will run 90 miles north up the Nimpkish Valley from Gold River to a new substation to be constructed near Port Hardy.

From the substation, to be named Quatsino, the line will run a further 27 miles westward to Jeune Landing near Port Alice.

* * *

A section of the line serving Rumble Beach from Port Alice will initially carry 25,000 volts.

A second 12-mile line from the Quatsino substation will power mining interests at the eastern end of Quatsino Sound.

Hydro now has a 25,000-volt line powered by diesel units to provide power to Port Hardy, Port McNeil and Alert Bay.

Construction of the wood-pole line is expected to begin in April for completion in the fall of 1971.

CABLE-LAYERS RISE WITH THE BIRDS TO WORK ON LINK

Bouys leap up

Three Lines Going Undersea In Boost for Island Power

Photostory by Mary Backlund

GALIANO ISLAND — Laying of undersea cables for the big transmission line, being constructed from the Mainland to Vancouver Island, got well underway last week.

With the help of R. J. (Bob) Bamford, president of Vancouver Divers, who has one of the most important jobs in the gigantic operation, I was able to see some of the operations from different angles.

He arranged a visit to the work on one of the big tugs which attend the cable-laying ship, Marcel Bayard, due to lay the first cable from Tsawwassen to Galiano Island, bringing the first of three cables on the route.

During the past two weeks, three undersea cables have been laid between Parker and Salt Spring islands, the remainder of the route overland on the Islands and Mainland will be by aerial transmission lines.

The tug I travelled on—the Westbridge One, skippered by Capt. Bill Church is fairly new. It is one of two built by Falconbridge Towing Co. to guide large vessels into berths. It is on charter to Rivtow which has the job of keeping the cable ship exactly on course during the cable-laying operations.

The tugboat is 80 feet long, 24 feet wide and has a draft of 13 feet. She is powered with two 980 b.h.p. engines. The steering nozzle on this tug is the first of its kind to be installed.

It was up with the birds at 3:45 a.m. to watch the operation begin in Cook's Cove.

It took the Marcel Bayard until 6 a.m. to get exactly in position as both tugs stood by.

Then the big cable went ashore, attached to a rope pulled from shore by a large winch.

Crew members of the big ship were busily attaching huge flotation buoys every ten feet so the heavy cable could be brought more easily ashore.

When about 600 feet of the cable had been paid out, Bob Bamford, now in his diving gear and carrying the newest ultrasonic radiophone system, went underwater and began cutting the buoys away from the cable.

It was easy to follow this part of the operation. As soon as a buoy was cut loose, it popped up like a famous facial tissue.

* * *

The cable was now safely on course to shore on Galiano Island, with some help from the two tugs, who kept the ship in position by pushing as needed on her side.

By 7:20 a.m. Bob had all of the buoys cut, and the sailors from the big ship had gathered them in and brought them back to the ship.

By 11:30 a.m. things were beginning to happen at the Galiano Island end of the operation.

A huge reel was towed, half afloat, from shore to the cable-layer, and the cable was attached to it. Then the reel started back to shore, more than a mile away. The water was too shallow for ships to get any closer.

Flotation buoys were again attached to the cable, this time more than one thousand of them, and all the while, the cable was kept on course while it was being pulled.

During the towing operation, I was invited on board the Marcel Bayard.

There was a language problem at first, since few of the crew members spoke English, and my French is almost non-existent. But Lucien Claveriul, director of Cables de Lyon, introduced me to the purser of the Marcel Bayard, and he proved to be a most genial host.

* * *

He asked me to speak slowly, and in this manner, we communicated satisfactorily.

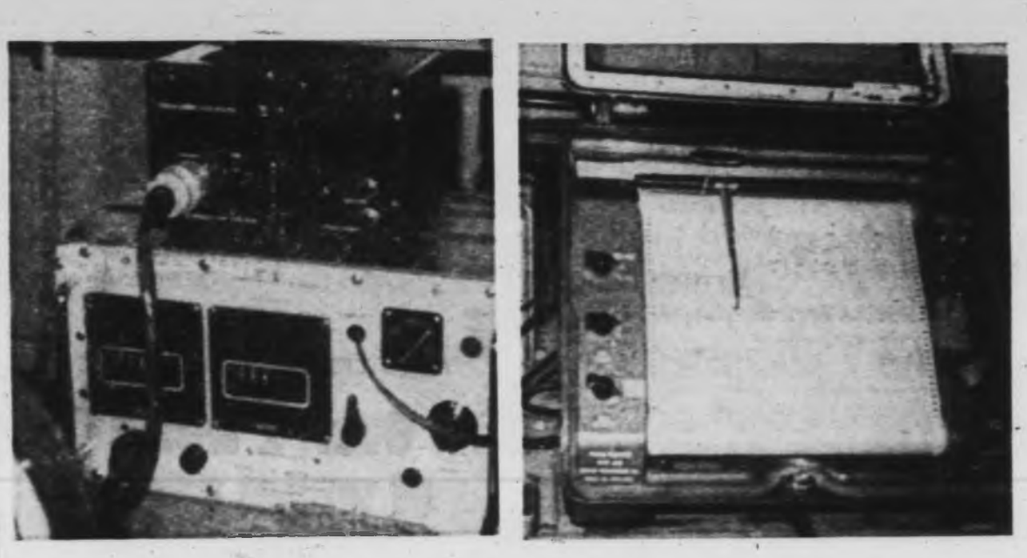
I watched the cable being paid out, and was shown the navigation system which keeps the whole operation on course almost automatically.

The grand tour included the kitchen, where meals are prepared for the more than one hundred officers and crew, and comfortable crew's quarters.

* * *

Elegance was not neglected on the Marcel Bayard. At the captain's table, linen and silver settings were the order of the day.

Suddenly, word came that the actual laying of the cable was completed, and it was going to be cut. An electric saw did the job, and while the sparks flew for a while, it was all over in about 20 seconds and the first cable across the Strait of Georgia had been laid.



Complicated navigation systems helps work

Comox Riding

Candidates Announce Platforms

COURTENAY — The three candidates for the Comox riding have given their themes for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

The candidates are Socred incumbent Dan Campbell, Mrs. Henrietta Chown, Liberal, and Harry Harris, NDP. So far the Conservatives have not announced any intention of entering the election arena.

Mr. Campbell says he will stand firm on his statement of "no promises, only commitments."

He also said he was in favor of an open-air all-candidates forum.

A wine and cheese party in Courtenay Aug. 6 will be held for Mr. Campbell, and the next day he will leave for the north Island. Development of the northern end of the Island will be one of the major topics which he will discuss during his campaign.

NEW DEPARTMENT

Mrs. Chown, nominated in Campbell River Monday, has come out in favor of creation of a new department of conservation and resources which, she said, "would, in conjunction with other departments, decide on what land would be used for forestry, mining, agriculture, recreation and multiple-use. Such a department would have to guarantee the people of B.C. a quality environment."

Mrs. Chown is a Courtenay senior high school teacher.

Other topics which she plans to use in her campaign include changes in the education finance formula, changing welfare from "a dole basis" to one of rehabilitation, and pollution control.

LEADER'S VISIT

She announced that Liberal party leader Pat McGeer would be in Courtenay Aug. 20.

Back from a tour of the North Island, Mr. Harris said: "The people in the north Vancouver Island want some of the benefits of the 'good life.'"

Mr. Harris defined their needs as first an all-weather network of roads linking Beaver Cove, Port McNeill, Port Hardy, Port Alice, and Holberg; a larger ferry on the Kelsey Bay-Beaver Cove run; a car-ferry serving Sointula, Alert Bay, and Vancouver Island points.

EARLY START?

He feels that a start should be made this year on the Kelsey Bay road.

"Proper road transportation would improve other problems such as school transportation, medical care, employment prospects and recreation."

The official start of his campaign will be Aug. 3 when provincial NDP leader Tom Berger will speak in Campbell River's Elk's Hall.

Businessman Dies Suddenly

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River businessman Sidney Cantelon Mullett, died suddenly at his home Tuesday at the age of 54.

Mr. Mullett was born and educated in Vancouver. He was an accomplished pianist and conducted a music school in Vancouver for 20 years.

In 1951, the family moved to Gabriola Island for three years and moved to Campbell River in 1954. In 1957, Mr. Mullett went into partnership with Gavin Wood in a music shop and in 1958, he took over the business and expanded into furniture and appliances. Later he was joined in the business by his son, Norman.

No Injuries

CHEMAINUS — No one was injured but damage was heavy in a two-car accident at the Chemainus River bridge section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Drivers were Ralph Garvey of Michigan and Victor Zapf of Saskatoon. Total damage was estimated at $1,400.

Courtenay Health Unit

Cash Help Faces Question

COURTENAY—An air of mystery is covering the future of a construction project at Courtenay's health unit.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has told city and health officials in a letter that federal grants for construction of health units had been cut by about 85 per cent.

But Tom Barnett, Comox-Alberni MP, says that the federal health minister's executive assistant had told him that no submission had been received from Victoria regarding the Courtenay project.

* * *

A second floor from the Courtenay health unit was to have been constructed, being paid for on the basis of $10,000 from Courtenay, $20,000 from the federal government and $30,000 from the provincial government.

Mr. Barnett said earlier that $1,000,000 from the federal government, for use in a matching grant program for health purposes, was still waiting to be claimed by the provincial government.

Mr. Loffmark, in a letter dated July 17, repeated a former assertion to Mayor George Hobson that the total of federal monies available for construction of health centres was to be cut by 85 per cent.

A letter received from the minister this week by the Upper Island Mental Health Society informed the group that the minister was hard pressed to see how a total of $5,000,000, which was required in B.C., could be realized from less than $1,000,000 which was available.

Mr. Loffmark referred to a statement made previously by Mr. Barnett and added that if Mr. Barnett had any solutions he would like to hear them.

In a phone call from Ottawa recently, Mr. Barnett stated he had checked the situation and could see no basis for the provincial minster's letter and termed it "completely erroneous."

* * *

Mr. Barnett stated: "If Hon. Ralph Loffmark is doing anything more than talk through his hat, he should start naming what projects, for which the provincial government had made application to the federal government, have been cut back and by what amount."

He repeated what he had said previously—that B.C. was eligible for health grants on the cost-sharing basis until March 31, next year, if application was made.

* * *

On Tuesday R. D. Ellis, health unit chairman, reported that Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was attempting to clarify the situation and would be in contact with both Mr. Loffmark and the federal minister of health.

Mr. Ellis said any clarification of the situation would be brought to the attention of officials in Courtenay as soon as it was available.

Alberni-Clayoquot

Fireworks Ban Given Three Readings

PORT ALBERNI — Three readings were given to a by-law which would prohibit fireworks and firecrackers throughout the Alberni-Clayoquot region, during the regional board's recent meeting.

However the bylaw provides for special permits to be issued to organizations for special events or festivals.

* * *

On the question of air pollution control, the board received a letter from Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston. He advised that a policy statement regarding air pollution control was expected to be issued in the near future. The board agreed to defer action on a proposed bylaw until the government's policy is known.

W. N. Hunt, Beaver Creek director, reported that hog-fuel dumping was polluting water supplies in his area.

* * *

Ian Asher, board secretary-treasurer, advised the board that the health inspector had taken water samples and that bacteriological and chemical analyses would be carried out to determine the extent of the problem.

It was expected that answers would be received shortly.

Nanaimo

Old CPR Wharves To Be Pulled Down

NANAIMO — Marathon Realty Ltd., the CPR subsidiary that owns the CPR wharf facilities, plans to pull down the wharf within the next several years.

R. P. Schfield, operations and construction supervisor, said the company had investigated the wharf facilities carefully and that some investigations were still going on.

* * *

He said some of the information gleaned showed that the underpinnings were so far gone that it would be dangerous if the wharves were used for larger ships to enable public to tour them.

He said the company planned to rip out the old facilities and that future mooring would only be possible near the present Princess of Vancouver berth, about a block south.

The company's plans, which have not been disclosed, would mean a different facility in place of the old wharves, he said.

* * *

Mayor Frank Ney said that the company, since the first contacted president N. R. Crump about naval ships not being allowed to tie up at the wharf, had been very co-operative.

"I am sure that this is one of the prices we have to pay for progress and I'm equally sure that this temporary disadvantage will become a benefit that far outweighs the discomfort," he said.

Forest Council Rejects B.C. View

A spokesman for the Council of Forest Industries has rejected a provincial government suggestion that past overcutting of the Douglas fir is the cause of the declining size of its annual cut.

"It's true that it has been overcut in proportion to its position in the forest inventory," said R. S. Wood, vice-president in charge of forestry, "but there are a number of other factors they might have mentioned.

"It was cut because of its geographic location along the southern coast, where the industry began its development and because it was economically preferable. For a long time, it was the only thing that could be marketed, and there's no point in cutting something you can't sell."

VIEWS CHANGE

Mr. Wood said the industry had to be very conscious of marketing considerations in its developing period.

"As the industry has progressed, buyer preferences have been changed and other species have now become acceptable that were not before."

He cited the example of the hemlock, which had to be marketed in Europe under the name of Alaska pine in an attempt to overcome a prejudice against it based on experience with poor quality eastern hemlock.

LOWER VALUES

The development of the pulp industry has also influenced the size of the Douglas fir cut.

"With the pulp industry, the lower-valued species of trees can now be used," he said.

Water Program Due To Overcome Problems

CUMBERLAND—Water problems which are causing concern to residents of parts of Cumberland and Royston users, have brought a statement from village administrator Bob Grivel.

The statement follows a meeting with engineers who have been stydying the problem and who have made recommendations to council.

On Tuesday, Mr. Grivel said: "The present sprinkling regulations have been imposed to reduce the draw on the Allens Lake supply system. This reduction has become necessary due to poor coloration and smell."

However it was stressed that from a health standpoint, the water was of good quality.

"Associated Engineering Services Ltd. have been retained by the village to recommend what steps should be taken to improve the waters condition, said Mr. Grivel.

The preliminary recommendations include:

- Installation of an activated carbon filter.
- Utilization of break point chlorination.
- Provision of a surface intake.

"The preliminary recommendations are now being undertaken and will be completed as soon as possible," he said.

The village council has requested Associated Engineering to carry out further studies with an aim to developing an over-all five-year water program.

This long-range program is being designed to include a realization of the anticipated growth of the area and to ensure an adequate and good supply of water."

Malaspina College Draws Students

Staff Problems Expected

NANAIMO — Malaspina Regional College officials do not anticipate any difficulty in coping with "an abnormal first enrolment," but there may be trouble in finding the necessary staff, the college council has been told.

President Dr. Carl Opgaard told the council that he was greatly encouraged by a total of 390 applicants so far. Registration dates are Sept. 3 to Sept. 5.

The college will open as scheduled Sept. 8 in the renovated hospital building, the council was told, despite difficulties such as the inability to obtain telephone service because of the B.C. Tel strike. It is expected to be about a fortnight before the service is installed.

ANNUAL MEETING

The council is to ask one of its members, Dr. Roy MacMillan of Nanaimo, who is vice-chairman of the provincial association of regional colleges, to have the annual provincial meeting discuss standardization and uniformity of pay scales and procedures affecting regional colleges.

Members said there was confusion at present because of a lack of college organizational standards following a rapid growth of the college movement in B.C. Two colleges were opening this year and two were due to open in 1970.

LACK OF EXPERIENCE

It was stated that the education department was having difficulty in giving the necessary lead to colleges because of its lack of experience at that level of post-secondary education.

An official opening date for Malaspina College is to be selected by Dr. Opgaard — possibly during October, after the initial starting period. Staff members take up their appointments Aug. 1.

The council also decided to inform clubs, groups and individuals that it would encourage gifts for scholarships and bursaries.

MONEY GIFTS

The decision followed donation of numerous amounts of money. Among the college benefactors are the Sons of Norway, IODE, Frank Ney of Nanaimo and the estate of the late George Allister MacKay, a Chemainus carpenter.

A college spokesman said Mr. MacKay's estate would make available to the college at least $1,200 a year for the direct benefit of Chemainus students.

The college has also received a number of gifts of books and pictures, including a framed portrait of Queen Elizabeth, for Dr. Opgaard's office.

The next council meeting is to be held at Lake Cowichan in September.

Office Stays Open For Indian Affairs

DUNCAN — Duncan council was told by Mayor Jim Quaife Monday night that the Indian affairs office at Duncan would not be closed.

The mayor said he had been given the information by NDP leader T. C. Douglas, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

* * *

Mr. Douglas was told by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien that his department had no intention of closing the office. It would continue to provide service to the Indian people.

Ald. Rois Harder of Duncan told North Cowichan council during a joint meeting Monday that the city would charge later this summer, for dumping garbage on the dump at Cowichan Indian reserve.

The dump is operated jointly by the city and North Cowichan. North Cowichan council members agreed with the proposed policy.

It is expected that the municipality, as soon as it starts garbage incineration this fall, will not use any more garbage dumps.

* * *

Ald. Harder explained that the charge had become necessary because the dump was also being used by people from the unorganized area.

He also stated that a full-time attendant at the dump would enable the city to exercise better control over the dump.

Sunday Start For Swim

NANAIMO—The annual Protection Island swim, sponsored by Nanaimo Realty, will start at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The distance between the starting point at the Malaspina Hotel to the finish line at Happy Land On the Island, is just over one mile.

* * *

Frank Ney, company president, said that the major rule would be that each contestant must have an escort boat. He predicted that last year's total entry of 247 would be exceeded.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. B.C. TEL BOOSTS WAGE OFFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A breakthrough in negotiations between the B.C. Telephone Co. and representatives of 6,600 striking employees came late Tuesday night when the company increased its previous wage stand of a 17 per cent increase over two years to 19.8 per cent.

In a statement issued after the talks, begun Friday with the aid of federal conciliation officer Don Tysoe, the company said it had offered "an across-the-board wage increase of 19.8 per cent, a reduced work week for plant employees which would raise their hourly rates by 27.9 per cent, and a variety of additional improvements."

The statement said negotiators of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. would submit the proposals to their membership for voting. Union officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

"We believe the employees will give most serious consideration to the company's offer and we hope they will accept them so this strike can be ended," the company statement said.

B.C. Tel had previously remained adamant on the 17 per cent increase, contained in a conciliation board report which the federation rejected. The federation demanded a 32 per cent increase and struck June 23.

About 1,500 supervisory employees have maintained long distance service and kept up with repairs but lagged in installing new telephones. Numerous incidents of vandalism to telephone cables have also marked the five-week strike.

Third picture sent shows Mars' south-polar cap

● Mars roadmap for two Mariners. Page 25

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) —Mariner 6 sent 32⅔ pictures across 58,000,000 miles of space Tuesday night—some with new information—as it hurtled toward a close flyby of the mysterious red planet Mars.

Most were fuzzy and indistinct but scientists said the later photos in the series showed these hitherto unknown features: the south polar ice cap has ragged edges, and it has a strange dark patch in its centre.

The early pictures were likened by one observer to burry views of a dirty marshmallow.

QUALITY IMPROVES

But quality improved and the ragged edge showed up on frame 20. A spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory commented later: "Perhaps the most exciting result is that some pictures show a ragged edge of the southern polar cap, possibly caused by the presence of mountains or craters. This is new information."

The cap's dark spot showed on Frame 30. The spokesman said this had not been seen before, and no information was available on its nature. Another feature of final shots was that

Nixons Away to Vietnam In Secrecy-Clouded Trip

BANGKOK (AP) — President Nixon took off early today from Thailand for a secrecy-cloaked one-day trip to Vietnam. Although the travelling White House refused to announce his destination, it was known to be somewhere in the Saigon area. Mrs. Nixon accompanied her husband on the flight.

Reliable sources indicated Nixon would visit one base around Saigon during his stay and make a speech to American troops.

The sources reported that Nixon would lunch with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at the Independence Palace in downtown Saigon as a dramatic show of confidence in the security of the capital.

● Nixon mission expresses support for Thieu. Page 3

The president and Mrs. Nixon took a helicopter from the grand palace in Bangkok to the airport, 15 miles from town.

* * *

He was accompanied by the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams, and by the U.S. Ambassador to Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker and Mrs. Bunker, who is Ambassador Carol Laise, the U.S. envoy to Nepal.

Nixon will return to Bangkok tonight to wind up his three-day stay in Thailand.

* * *

Shortly after Nixon left Bangkok, a communications blackout was imposed in Saigon on out-going news dispatches. It was believed that the blackout would continue until the president was on his way back to Thailand.

The suddenness and the security-dictated secrecy of Nixon's Vietnam travel arrangements were reminiscent of former president Lyndon Johnson's two brief visits while he was on Asian trips.

Johnson flew into Cam Ranh Bay, a big, relatively secure U.S. base some 180 miles northeast of Saigon in

Czechs Hurl Rocks At Soviet Visitors

PRAGUE (AP)—Angry workers stoned a Soviet Communist party delegation arriving to visit a factory outside of Prague Tuesday, Czechoslovak informants said.

The Moscow Municipal Communist party delegation headed by Victor V. Grishine, deputy member of the Soviet party Politburo, left without entering the Avia light plane and airplane parts plant north of the capital, the sources said. No injuries were reported. There was no official confirmation of the incident.

Czechoslovak eyewitnesses said several hundred workers were outside the Avia factory as the Russians arrived. The visitors assumed it was to welcome them but they quickly returned to their cars when the welcome turned out to be jeers and rocks, the sources said.

From Avia, the Soviet delegation went to the sprawling CKD industrial works in the northwest of Prague, where workers have withheld union dues and held stop-work meetings to protest pro-Soviet policies of Communist party leader Gustav Husak.

At the CKD Locomotive Works, sources said, virtually all the Czechoslovak workers managed to be away from their machines and the Russians passed through an almost deserted factory.

Own Brassiere Fetters Disguised Hijack Man

MANAGUA (Reuters) — A would-be hijacker disguised as a woman was overpowered Tuesday by the pilot of a Nicaraguan airliner and tied up with his own brassiere and strips from his miniskirt.

The 26-year-old Nicaraguan was also wearing an elastic girdle.

The C-46 NICA airliner, on a flight to the city of Bluefields on the Atlantic coast with 42 persons aboard, returned here and the man was handed over to police.

He was identified as Carlos Jose Guadamuz, a member of the clandestine Sandinista National Liberation Army who had been believed to be be in Czechoslovakia.

Guadamuz, wearing a wig and dressed in a yellow miniskirt, boarded the plane under the name of Maria Terese Lainez.

Movie takes world to eerie lunar landing

HOUSTON (AP) — It opens like a science-fiction thriller, silent and eerie and shadowy, without sound effects but loaded with high drama.

A tiny spaceship. Two astronauts, alone but not visible. A foreign, mysterious, cratered planet glowing out a window.

* * *

This is the prelude to man's first moon landing, the filmed approach to the lunar surface July 20 of Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

Through vivid color photography, the Apollo explorers took American television viewers aboard their spaceship Eagle and ferried them Tuesday to a perilous landing on the lunar surface.

* * *

This was the first movie footage of the Apollo 11 adventure released by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration after elaborate, complex and delicate decontamination and processing procedures.

The film was accompanied by four-color photographs showing footprints, a silhouette of the spidery moonship and a tan, beachlike lunar surface with the American flag unfurled above it.

● Sterile mice face dust shots. Page 3

● Astronauts' moon album. Page 25

But the 16-millimetre movie film was the highlight.

The space drama opened as Armstrong and Aldrin guided Eagle along the southwestern edge of the landing zone in the Sea of Tranquillity.

As the spaceship descended to its historic rendezvous, viewers could see the olive-colored, cratered lunar surface shining through Aldrin's right-hand window.

They could watch as the

El Salvador Pulling Out Of Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador backed down under pressure from the Organization of American States Tuesday and announced its intention to withdraw its troops from Honduran soil occupied in a recent armed conflict.

El Salvador yielded after the OAS had agreed to apply stiff economic sanctions unless the Salvadorean government removed the troops.
